Schmeling-Sharkey.
The Achilles Tendon.
Leisure and Money.
Do Angels Fly on Sunday?

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MESSRS. SHARKEY AND SCHMELING met last night. About 70,000 citizens paid $750,000 to see the fight. At least 40,000,000 Americans listened to the fight, blow by blow, on the radio.

GENTLEMEN OF THE GANGSTER type from Chicago, gathered in by New York's police, were hurt when asked if they knew who killed the Tribune reporter. Certainly not. They came to see the fight, not to run from Chicago's shooting squads.

MR. SHARKEY took his part patriotically, and wished you to know over his own signature that he was defending the honor of America "against a foreign invader." If the Kaiser, in dead of Schmeling, had come it could not have been more serious.

MR. SHARKEY, whose real name is Cucoshay, is a Lithuanian, first American born generation, which shows how quickly patriotism sprouts.

Professional gamblers bet two to one on him, which should have meant victory for him, and preservation for our national honor. Much depended on Mr. Schmeling's Achilles tendon, which was seriously injured in a motor accident in Germany.

MR. SCHMELING had not been doing "road work" or rope skipping in his training. Sporting reporters accepted his explanations of this eccentricity, which avoided mention of the important tendon.

"Now it can be told," as it will not hurt gate receipts, of which part will be devoted to a useful milk fund for poor children.

MR. NELSON ROCKEFELLER, grandson of John D. Rockefeller, writes on "The Use of Leisure," in the Dartmouth Alumni Magazine. The article is well written, serious.

In time, the young man's problem will be "The Use of Money." His father and grandfather do not live extravagantly. They give away a great deal, but compound interest is more powerful than their giving. With any sort of management the third generation of Rockefellers should have at least five billions of dollars. A large sum to use satisfactorily.

THE PRINCE OF WALES flew from England to Le Touquet for a game of golf on Sunday, and churchmen at Cardiff wired him:

"Your royal highness should set a higher example to your future royal subjects by refraining from encouraging desecration of the Sabbath."

The Prince did not answer.

PERHAPS HE IS ASKING the Archbishop of Canterbury whether the angels fly on Sunday or fold their wings on Saturday midnight, to keep them folded until Monday morning.

Certain springs were once known to be holy and gathered profitable crowds, because they yielded not a drop of water on the Sabbath.

This has not happened lately, although it would still be easy to arrange a water supply that could be turned off.

A YOUNG AMERICAN TWIN, Jenny of the Dolly Sisters, sat up all night in a gambling house at Le Touquet, France, playing baccarat.

And as the sun rose she went to bed with 2,000,000 francs winnings, about $80,000. At least, she and the press agent say so.

AS THE YOUNG LADY RETIRED to her virgin slumber, the gambling owners called her blessed.

For their 2,000,000 francs, if really won, they will get 800,000,000 francs' worth of free advertising. Fools will crowd their tables and later Miss Dolly will return the $80,000 with interest.

WALL STREET CONTINUES to worry small fish, and reflect the actions of bigger men.

Little ones worry, and sell. Bigger ones, that have been turning out stocks, tens of millions of shares at a time, do not want any "violence," so they let the market slide down hill a little while, then steady it.

Thus, you may see a tender father gently catch his little child as it jumps from a height.

But, one of these days, the child may be seriously bumped.

CALL MONEY, used for stock speculation, cost only two and a half per cent today, and four or five hundred millions could not be lent. Sad for bankers, lately wallowing in 15 per cent call money.

NEWSPAPERS BEGIN TO PRINT items under the heading "Today's Murder News," as they print "Today's Transactions on the Stock Market."

Killings in New York were quite active today, with knives and pistols.

Chicago takes seriously the shooting of a newspaper reporter. But conviction is improbable.

THE KILLER, probably, was some youth in his teens, fortified with cocaine. Paid for the job. He did not know the name

Speed-Boat Crash Kills Segrave

WIFE SEES ACCIDENT, 10 MISSING

Mechanic Feared Drowned In Sunken Craft; Third Hurt; 100-Mile-Hour Clip

WINDERMERE, England, June 13.—(AP.)—Maj. Sir Henry O. Segrave, famous speed king, died shortly after 5 o'clock here this evening, a few hours after he was injured when his speed boat, Miss England II, upset and was crushed, in sight of his wife.

A mechanic in the boat with Segrave is missing, feared drowned, and another member of the crew was badly injured.

The missing mechanic was E. Halliwell, an employe of the Rolls Royce motor works. The third member of the crew was M. J. Willocks, who was taken from the water alive and placed in a hospital.

The accident occurred on Lake Windermere just after Segrave had shot his speed boat over a mile course at a speed believed between 96 and 101 miles an hour—a world record.

BOAT EXPLODES, SINKS

The craft was making its third spurt over the course when it suddenly turned over, throwing out Segrave and Willocks, and plunged from sight. The Miss England II was almost totally destroyed in an explosion that followed the terrific dive, and floated bottom-up half an hour before it settled to the bottom of the lake—240 feet—presumably with the

SENATE PUTS O. K. UPON TARIFF

Controversial Bill Passes By Narrow Margin; Fight Continues Until Voting

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The Senate today passed the controversial Smoot - Hawley tariff measure and sent the bill to the House for its concurrence, expected tomorrow.

The vote was 44 to 42.

The margin for the bill was narrow indeed, its passage having been in doubt until Senators Reed and Grundy, of Pennsylvania, finally announced yesterday they would support it. Adoption by a large majority in the House is forecast, with President Hoover's signature believed certain when the $1,000,000,000 act reaches the White House.

On receiving it, the President will refer the bill to Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon for a formal recommendation. Mellon will declare in its favor, probably as an aid to business stability and particularly on protective principles. Then Mr. Hoover will sign it.

In the closing debate, the bill was commended by its friends as defending American industry, la-

Morosco and Tully Win Court Ruling

ALBANY, N. Y., June 13.—(INS.)—The Court of Appeals today denied the motion of Mrs. Grace Fendler for reargument of her suit against Oliver Morosco and Richard W. Tully, producer and playwright, alleged by her to have plagiarized material from her script, "In Hawaii," for their successful play, "Bird of Paradise."

The state's highest court last March voided a judgment for $781,000 granted Mrs. Fendler in lower courts and dismissed the suit.

$4,000 in Liquors On Shriners' Trains

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., June 13.—(AP.)—Railroad trains on which Shriners traveled from the convention held here this week in Toronto, Ont., yielded between $4,000 and $5,000 worth of choice wines, liquors and cognacs when they were searched at the border, T. M. Hennessey, deputy customs collector at the Falls port, said today.

No charges were preferred or fines imposed by the customs, as government officials were unable to determine who owned the liquor.

GRAND JURY TO BE GIVEN ALL FRAUD EVIDENCE

Prosecution Pledged Though Roster Remains Missing; Public to Be Kept Informed

Investigation of the disappearance of a voters list reported stolen from the recount board, following the primary election, has been started by District Attorney Andrew T. Park, he announced today. Park said:

"The District's Attorney's office is investigating and will bend every effort to locate the list and the person or persons responsible for its disappearance.

"Any information about the case will be given to the public as soon as it can be done without hampering our efforts."

MORE VOTES THAN VOTERS

The missing list showed 532 voters residing in the First District of the Sixth Ward. In this district, 550 Republican ballots were found in the box, 18 more than the number of listed voters.

If fraud is uncovered, Park warned, he will prosecute regardless of whether the missing list is uncovered. He said:

"Such a fraud case would hinge primarily around stuffing of the ballot box."

He said he had four witnesses who would testify to the number of persons whose names appeared on the missing list, and that the loss of the list would, accordingly, not stop the prosecution.

Park declared that any cases arising out of the present recount

CORAOPOLIS FOR LIBERAL SUNDAY

Results of blue law poll to date in Ben Avon, Blawnox and Brentwood will appear tomorrow.

Coraopolis is added to the roll of cities, boroughs and townships of Allegheny County demanding abolition of the closed Sunday in the Blue Law poll of the county by the Sun-Telegraph.

Voters of this residential borough favor repeal of the Blue Laws by a five-to-one majority over enforcement. A substantial proportion of the voting population of Coraopolis is represented by the 358 ballots filed to date, divided as follows:

For the Blue Laws	55
For modification	31
For repeal	272

The division between men and women is: Enforcement, 29 men and 26 women; modification, 22 men and 9 women; repeal, 218 men and 54 women.

The latest tabulation in the poll of the county shows a total of 42,190 ballots, divided as follows:

	Men	Women	Total
For Blue Laws	3517	2061	5578
For modification	1966	1284	3250
For repeal	22342	11020	33362

The ratio is 5.1 for repeal to one vote for enforcement, with 77 per cent voting for repeal, 15 per cent for enforcement and 8 per cent for modification.

HELEN DEFIES BARE LEG BAN

WIMBLEDON, England, June 13.—(AP.)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, American ace, who opened the Wightman Cup tennis matches today with a victory over Miss Joan Fry, British star, surprised the galleries by appearing bare-legged and thus settling, so far as she is concerned, the controversy which has long raged over stockings here.

Miss Fry had a surprise of her own, too. She announced her engagement to Lieut. Thomas Lakeman, of the British Army Tank Corps. Miss Fry celebrated her twenty-fourth birthday last month. During her South African tennis tour several years ago she became engaged to a lawyer, but the engagement was cancelled last fall.

Muldoon Refuses Trophy To Schmeling for Beating Sharkey on Foul

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP.)—William Muldoon, veteran member of the New York State Athletic Commission, is quoted by the Evening Post today as saying that Max Schmeling's name will not be engraved on the Tunney-Muldoon trophy, emblematic of the world heavyweight championship.

Schmeling defeated Jack Sharkey, Boston ex-sailor, on a foul last night at the Yankee Stadium. Some 70,000 dazed spectators, who paid approximately $750,000, saw Schmeling, badly beaten in the fourth round, become history's tenth heavyweight champion when a low blow was called by one of the judges at the ringside. The second judge and the referee did not see the foul.

"THOROUGHLY DISGUSTED"

"No man who wins the title on a foul will have his name engraved on the trophy," said Muldoon.

"I am thoroughly disgusted. I've spent two years in trying to get a solution to the heavyweight puzzle and now a thing like this has to occur."

James A. Farley, chairman of the New York commission, said Sharkey ought to come forth with an offer to meet Schmeling in a return bout for some charity and accept only a percentage bit for his end, just to prove to the peo-

He did not ask the death penalty, stating he would let the jury determine that. The evidence against Fazio, he asserted, was perfect.

MISSING BABY BACK HOME

Peggy Barwell, 3, of 49 Feilbach street, Millvale, spent last night crying and sleeping on a brush-covered hillside about half a mile from her home while members of the fire department, Boy Scouts and other searchers were hunting her. She seemed none the worse for her experience this morning as she was eating a breakfast of toast and jelly. She said:

"I just walked away by myself and I fell down and I cried. I slept on the hill. Toda, the Boy Scouts found me and brought me home. I wanted a drink."

Peggy was found about 9:45 a. m. by seven Boy Scouts, members m. by seven Boy Scouts under Assistant Scout Master William Ballentine, of the Bauerstown troop, on a hillside back of Fried

LUZERNE RULE AWAITED TODAY

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., June 13.—(INS.)—Political interest throughout the commonwealth was centered on the Luzerne County court today, in the expectation the decision would be handed down in the long drawn-out dispute over the perforating of the primary election ballots in 374 Luzerne precincts.

With the total votes of the other 66 counties officially reported from Harrisburg, Francis Shunk Brown is leading Gifford Pinchot, by 6,496 votes. Hence the returns from Luzerne County, in which Pinchot has an unofficial majority sufficient to give him the Republican gubernatorial nomination, will decide the election.

Pinchot's attorneys claim that perforating of the ballots was an act to prevent fraud, and because it was done at the direction of the court, cannot be construed as an act of law violation.

KLINE TO SWING AX IN POLICE SHAKEUP TOMORROW

ELSNER MAY BE REDUCED IN RANK

'Strip' Conditions Don't Suit Mayor, Is Report: Many Other Changes Forecast

A police shakeup involving appointment of a new inspector, demotion of another and numerous transfers is slated to begin tomorrow, according to reliable reports in the City-County Building.

Capt. Harry Moore, veteran officer of the Twentieth Ward is scheduled for appointment as inspector of the new Seventh Police District, embracing Carrick, Overbrook and Hays, recently-annexed territory. He is acting inspector at present.

Inspector Joseph Elsner, of the Penn Avenue District, is listed for demotion or retirement, according to those close to high police officials.

Elsner supported Congressman P. J. Sullivan for renomination and is said to be on the right side of the fence politically, but Mayor Kline is reported dissatisfied with conditions in the Strip.

The prospective changes are expected to get under way tomorrow, when from 50 to 75 transfers will be announced.

Action on Moore and Elsner, it is said, will depend upon the return of Mayor Kline, who attended the Sharkey-Schmeling fight last night in New York.

WINS OVER 50

Moore won favor for appointment as inspector over 50 or more applicants those close to the Mayor assert. He had the backing of three South Side Republican Ward chairmen—Thomas Jones, Eighteenth Ward; Samuel Reno, Nineteenth Ward, and Henry Townsend, Twentieth Ward. He also was reported the choice of Public Safety Director James M. Clark and Supt. Peter P. Walsh.

Director Clark was notified today by the Civil Service Commission that it was unable to provide a list of 100 sub-firemen and 125 sub-patrolmen, scheduled for appointment tomorrow. The commission has not completed grading test papers. Each applicant is entitled to five days to protest his rating.

body of Halliwell, who was believed trapped in the cockpit.

Segrave was dragged from the water by the owners of speed launches which rushed to his assistance.

In a nearby hotel he was found to have suffered a broken arm, a broken rib and a fractured thigh.

DEATH NOT EXPECTED

After being taken from the lake, Sir Henry was attended by three doctors, who did everything in their power, but he was too seriously injured to recover. Lady Segrave was grief-stricken.

The famous racer's death came as a great shock, as it was not thought at first he had been seriously injured.

It was stated that the accident was due to a step on the outside of the bows of the boat giving away under pressure against the water. The bottom of the boat was crushed in.

The disaster overtook the boat as Sir Henry was testing her preparatory to going to the United States in an effort to lift the international trophy at Detroit.

QUIT AUTOS FOR WIFE

Segrave had given up automobile racing, after establishing a world record at Daytonia Beach, Fla., March 11, 1929, at the request of his wife who considered it too dangerous.

He was too active, however, to remain entirely out of the field of mechanics and speed.

He took up motor boating as a hobby, with his wife's consent, as she felt this was not so dangerous.

DISTINGUISHED CAREER

Maj. Segrave, who was 35 years old, had a distinguished career. He served in the World War, and was wounded three times.

He was mentioned in dispatches.

He was technical adviser to the air council in 1917, and previously had been attached to the general staff in France.

He was attached to the British embassy in Washington in 1918.

Maj. Segrave held the world's automobile speed record in 1926, 1927 and 1929, and the world's champion trophy on water in 1929. He also took the world's record for single-engined hydroplanes in 1929.

He was president of the Wolverhampton Engineering Society and held numerous orders of merit.

After setting the automobile record at Daytona Beach, he was knighted by King George on his return to England.

BARREL MURDER GOES TO JURY

different degrees of murder and reviewed the evidence, the jury of six women and six men retired to deliberate.

Charging another motive—"the green-eyed monster of jealousy"—pointed stronger evidence at others. Defense Attorney William H. Coleman made his closing argument before court adjourned yesterday. He cited the absence of Mrs. Gregory, widow of the slain man; the commonwealth's failure to have Ray Lightner appear as a witness when called, and the fact Elmer Justice and his stepdaughter, Mrs. Gregory, roomed next door to the house where the slain man lived with Mrs. Lightner during her husband's absence. Shouting to the jury he said:

"The two at whom the finger of guilt most strongly points are absent from this courtroom."

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE

Declaring the commonwealth case was based on circumstantial evidence, Coleman pointed out a second possible motive could be found. Pointing out the testimony of John P. Horne, who admitted as a commonwealth rebuttal witness that he had lived with Mrs. Gregory at Beaver Falls, Coleman said:

"Again the finger of guilt could point to Justice, Horne and Lightner."

Jackson called several witnesses in rebuttal after the defense had closed. They were subject to grilling by Coleman, particularly Frank L. Ritz, county detective, who testified to driving over a part of the route made by Fazio March 31, the day before the headless body was found at Penn Township.

The commonwealth had endeavored to dispute the distance Fazio had testified to traveling on the basis of the amount of gasoline purchased on those two days.

The order of Gov. Flem D. Sampson granting reprieves to John Keller, James Grigsby and Lloyd Williams, Negro, was not read until after the two men had been executed.

Ratcliffe was the first to die. As he was strapped in the chair, he said, "I'll meet you all in glory." He was pronounced dead at 12:33 a. m.

Benefit Seen in Tariff By State Congressmen

WASHINGTON, June 13.—(AP.)—Passage of the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill by Congress and signed approval by the President, was said by Senators Reed and Grundy and members of the Pennsylvania House delegation today to mean a readjustment of agricultural and industrial development in Pennsylvania.

Primarily those who have written the bill believed its enactment would mean passing of uncertainty in agricultural, industrial and commercial zones of the state.

Employes of the Tariff Commission concurred in the belief expressed by Pennsylvania representatives, that agricultural and industrial interests should quicken their pace soon after the rates and provisions of the measure are understood. By fall, many of them believe, readjustment should be complete.

The principal object Pennsylvanians had in mind during the writing of the bill, they repeatedly asserted, was to forestall, if possible, through high imposts, importation of agricultural or manufactured products, turned out in foreign countries by labor compensated at a wage considerably below Pennsylvania standard.

LOREE FORCES TURN FIRE ON OLD ROADS

East Lacks Modern Rail Line, Proponents of New Route in State Assert

The entire eastern region of the United States does not contain a single modern railroad, according to charges made by counsel for L. F. Loree in their last petition to the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to build a super-railroad from Pittsburgh across Pennsylvania.

Henry Oliver Evans and H. T. Newcomb, attorneys for the proposed New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago Railroad, the Loree line, stated that all the railroads of this district were built many decades ago, and a few have passed the first century of their existence.

Their managements have supplied heavier rails, larger locomotives and new terminal facilities. They have even relocated some lines to decrease grades and lighten curves. But no new lines adopting modern standards of construction and equipment have been supplied, it was said.

LABOR IMPOSED UPON

They assert that if American labor and industry are entitled to railroad transportation of the highest possible quality they have not received their just due.

The attorneys for Loree insist that the report of C. V. Burnside, assistant director of finance, recommending that the application be denied, would forbid the construction of the only railroad of efficiency and economy ever offered this district.

They charge that Burnside's recommendation results from complete confusion between the public interest and the private self interest, of the railroads, protesting against the new line.

ANSWER TO REPORT

The answer to Burnside's report says:

"Although it is admitted that protestants' facilities are inferior and relatively inefficient, it is concluded that they should be permitted to monopolize and penalize industry and traffic, and imminent increases in traffic, until such time, if ever, as it shall suit their financial advantage to supply superior facilities, possibly equal to those now offered by this applicant."

JUDGE COHEN RITES HELD

Prominent men and women from all walks of life, many of them from outside Pittsburgh, attended the funeral services today for Judge Josiah Cohen, who died Wednesday. Services were held in the Rodef Shalom Temple at 2 p. m. The synagogue was crowded to capacity.

The services were in charge of Rabbi Samuel H. Goldenson, of the temple, assisted by Rabbi Herman Hailperin, of the Tree of Life Congregation. Interment was to be in West View Cemetery.

Honorary pallbearers included all of Judge Cohen's colleagues on the Common Pleas and Criminal Court benches, as well as judges of Federal and County courts, Mayor Charles H. Kline and city officials, and County Commissioners.

All Allegheny County courts, with the exception of Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff's court, in which the Gregory murder trial is in progress, adjourned at noon to permit the judges to attend the funeral services.

The Young Men's and Women's Hebrew Association, of which Judge Cohen was a director, will be closed from noon until 3 p. m. out of respect to the dead jurist.

HEIRS OF CHIEF DEMAND LAND

Heirs of Indian Chief Cornplanter, who live on the Cornplanter reservation in Warren County, yesterday appealed to the government to help them obtain possession of 303 acres at the mouth of Oil Creek, Venango County, to which they claim they are entitled by a state grant in 1796 to the chief.

A committee of five from the reservation, headed by Owen Jacobs, 89, oldest descendant of Chief Cornplanter, visited the office of United States Attorney Louis E. Graham and discussed the claim with Assistant Attorney Lloyd W. Bryan. They will return later for a further discussion with First Assistant Attorney James I. Marsh.

Other members of the committee are George Lee, Sr., chairman; his son, Webster Lee, Jr.; Wilson Pierce and Clarence Gordon.

BOMB ROCKS OHIOANS IN CHURCH

Mysterious Blowup Breaks Window and Hurls Officer Off His Feet Near Pomeroy

POMEROY, O., June 13.—(AP.)—The Pentecostal Church, in Bedford Township, was shaken and a window blown out last night by a dynamite bomb set off in the rear of the building, while 200 persons were attending a revival meeting. No one was hurt.

Constable Leslie Murray, who had been patrolling the church yard after finding a bomb several days ago, was knocked over by the blast, but was uninjured. He said he did not see the person who set off the bomb.

A near panic followed the explosion, but services were resumed after order was restored.

TARIFF TO PASS SENATE TODAY

bor and agriculture against cheap foreign competition and as insuring prosperity.

ASSAILED AS BURDEN

It was assailed by its foes as doubling the cost of living, levying heavy tax burdens upon farmers and as building up a tariff embargo against the rest of the world, certain to ruin America's foreign trade and to incur enmity abroad.

Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, asserted:

"As a feature of the administration's farm relief program, the bill is an abortion. It perpetuates and intensifies inequalities and discriminations between agriculture and other industries. For this reason, it violates the platforms of both political parties."

The wave of prosperity that engulfed American business and agriculture during 1928 will return within a year after its passage, while economic conditions will show rapid improvement within 3 6days, Senator Watson (Rep.), of Indiana, declared. He laughed at the gloomy forecasts of the bill's foes, declaring the same predictions had been made every time Congress enacted a tariff.

Senator Borah, Insurgent Republican of Idaho, declared:

"How are you going to fulfill the pledge made at Kansas City to restore agriculture to an equality with industry without the debenture? If you raise agricultural rates and correspondingly raise industrial rates, you get nowhere."

REFUSE TROPHY TO SCHMELING

ple of his country that he actually is "the best man in the world."

RETURN BOUT SEEN

Such a return fight in September may be the upshot of all the furore. William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden, told Sharkey's manager after the bout that he would be ready today to discuss promotion of another contest here.

Meanwhile, Sharkey faced punishment under the stringent foul rules of the State Athletic Commission, despite an understanding that the contract for the fight last night specified these regulations were not to apply. The commission, some time ago, decided to suspend automatically for 60 days any fighter offending locally for the first time by fouling an opponent.

"JUMPED INTO BLOW"

First films of the fight are to be shown in New York today, and fans hope they will show whether the disputed blow was fair or foul. Sharkey, in tears after the fight, said Schemling had jumped into a blow he was just starting.

Muldoon insisted Sharkey was the winner. He said:

"In my opinion Sharkey should have been declared the winner by a knockout when Schmeling refused to answer the bell for the fifth round," Muldoon said today.

"The disputed blow as I saw it was a terrific left hook which landed just above the belt and was perfectly fair. Physicians' reports don't mean a thing. Signs of a foul blow would not be evident in a physical examination for several hours."

Says Women Must Loaf To Compete With Men

ST. LOUIS, June 13.—(AP.)—Before women are able to compete with men in "big jobs," they must learn the art of loafing, in the opinion of Mrs. Oliva Johnson, of St. Paul, Minn., president of the International Zonta Clubs.

Women, she said, are too conscientious, taking care of details and keeping their noses to the grindstone, when they should be delegating authority and details to other employes. Men holding good positions, she declared, are perfectly helpless without their secretaries, Mrs. Johnson said:

"Until business women learn to knock off and play golf or its equivalent, they will not find themselves able to compete with men in the big jobs. Women must also learn to disagree agreeably."

MARIE WORKS FOR RECONCILIATION OF CAROL AND HELEN

GIVEN ROYAL WELCOME HOME

King's Decree Proclaims Ex-Wife Queen; Maniu, as Premier, Drafts Cabinet

International News Service

BUCHAREST, June 13. Marie, "Queen Mother of the Balkans," after being welcomed home from Germany in truly royal fashion, turned her attention today to adjusting the marital difficulties of King Carol II., of Rumania, and Queen Helen.

Princess Helen, divorced from Carol by parliamentary decree during his exile, was made Queen in a decree signed by Carol. The newly crowned monarch of Rumania, by a sweeping edict, obliterated the legality and authority of acts promulgated during his four years of official banishment.

Helen, under the law, never was divorced from him, and the 36-year-old ruler undoubtedly has made a masterful stroke toward the reconciliation he seeks with Helen, which Helen so far has refused.

LOOK TO SON'S INTERESTS

Both have the interests of their 9-year-old son, Crown Prince Michael, at heart, and it is through the medium of the lovable, fair-haired boy that Dowager Queen Marie hopes to bring Helen to Carol's side.

Carol's conferring of the titles Queen of Rumania and Her Majesty upon Helen was a not displeasing honor, it is understood. Helen, secretly, was proud in view of her refusals to return to Carol as his wife.

Dr. Jules Maniu, powerful leader of the Peasants' party, today was appointed premier.

He had resigned that post soon after Carol's return, but, at the time, had indicated his willingness to undertake the formation of a new cabinet.

HAS LITTLE DIFFICULTY

Premier Maniu encountered little difficulty in lining up a coalition cabinet. He chose M. Mironescu for the important post of foreign minister. M. Conddescu was selected as war minister.

Zizi Lambrino, once Carol's wife, and Magda Lupescu, Rumanian junk dealer's daughter whose auburn-haired beauty held Carol ensnared during the years of his exile, seem to have faded into the background.

From the Cotroceni palace, Carol is conducting a royal romance, recourting the beautiful Helen and wooing, rather than seeking to compel reunification of the royal family.

Queen Marie, whose advice always has swayed Helen, is a powerful ally for Carol.

MARIE WARMLY WELCOMED

Queen Helen, ill with a cold, was not at the railway station when Marie arrived aboard the Orient express from Munich and Oberammergau, but King Carol—attired as a general of aviation—Grand Voivode Michael, her daughter, Elisabeth of Greece, and Prince Nicolas, were on hand with troops and government officials.

A great crowd rendered a welcome which Rumanians said never had been surpassed for warmth. Queen Marie kissed Carol three times, and greeted the crowd with a kiss from her finger tips. She embraced Elisabeth, then Michael, and at the last Prince Nicolas.

Carol had a gift for her. During the day he had conferred the Order of King Ferdinand, created during the reign of his father but never conferred on anybody before, on her.

Flier Forced Down, Barely Misses Sea

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP)—Lost in a fog that shrouded the harbor today, Lieut. Donald Brunner, of Wright Field, near Dayton, O., could not find Miller Field, Staten Island, in his plane and squashed his ship down on a road near the field and only 300 feet from the shore.

The plane was damaged, and Lieut. Brunner, who was flying here in connection with experimental radio work, was severely bruised.

RICH INVENTOR FOUND SHOT

LOS ANGELES, June 13.—(AP)—J. P. Bartley, 50, wealthy San Diego inventor and philanthropist, was found dead in his room at a fashionable hotel here. Officers found a pistol with one discharged shell. Nearby was a note saying he had been defrauded of $30,000 by "crooked lawyers abroad," and "I am ending it all."

The note directed that the body be given to the University of California at Los Angeles for experimental purposes. It also said he had sent his jewelry to a "sister in the East."

Bartley was a member of a prominent and wealthy New York family and his father, James, was a former member of the New York Legislature.

CHICAGO CRISIS CALLS CITY CABINET

Mayor Thompson Silent in Broadside Over Failure To Get Reporter's Killer

CHICAGO, June 13.—(AP.)—His administration harassed by demands of public, press and pulpit for an end of ruthless slaughter, Mayor William Hale Thompson maintained official silence today while reports gained circulation that a secret cabinet meeting had been called.

The police strategists kept hidden whatever plans they have laid to apprehend the killer of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, Tribune reporter, and pursued their systematic sifting of the city's floaters.

In the four days since Lingle was shot down in a downtown pedestrian subway, the detectives have added no new clue to the short barreled revolver and the silk glove dropped by the slayer in flight. But they have corraled 1,223 vagrants and gangsters, run 377 of them through the gauntlet of the identification bureau, and found 199 bearing criminal records.

ADMITS PRESSURE

The courts arraigned 123 yesterday on disorderly conduct charges and freed them. The evidence was insufficient.

Mayor Thompson acknowledged today that pressure had been brought for removal of his police heads. He was asked:

"Are you considering a change?"

"I have made no decision."

DEMAND OUSTER

Civic organizations and newspaper editorials kept up the cry for action or the supplanting of Police Commissioner William F. Russell and Chief John Stege.

Something of a mystery arose with the disclosure that Stege did not send the telegram to New York which resulted in the prompt release yesterday of nine notorious gangsters.

The New York authorities had arrested Jake Guzick, Capone beer syndicate manager; Dennis Coonery, Ted Newberry and six others, ostensibly bound for the Sharkey-Schmeling fight, but a wire from Chicago said "not wanted," and the nine were turned loose.

FORBES NAMED TOKIO ENVOY

WASHINGTON, June 13.—(AP)—President Hoover moved to fill the last of the major diplomatic posts now vacant by nominating W. Cameron Forbes, wealthy Bostonian, as ambassador to Japan.

Forbes has been in public life at intervals since 1904 when he became a member of the Philippine commission. He was governor general of the islands from 1909 to 1913 and in 1921 was a member of the Wood-Forbes commission to investigate conditions in the islands.

The Tokio post, which is one of the most important American diplomatic stations, has been vacant since Charles MacVeagh resigned last year, with the exception of the few months this year when William Castle, Jr., filled the post temporarily.

BARE HORROR OF DISASTER AT INQUIRY

Marine Tells of Seeing Many Leap in Fiery Sea; Crew Praised by Officer

BOSTON, June 13.—(AP.)—Members of the crew of the steamship Fairfax seemed fairly efficient, and confusion lasted but a few minutes after the collision of the Fairfax and the oil tanker Pinthis in Massachusetts Bay Tuesday night, Harry E. Kipp, Marine sergeant, testified today at the opening of the second day of the federal inquiry into the disaster which claimed 47 lives.

Kipp, who had been stationed at the Boston Navy Yard, was proceeding under orders to Norfolk as a passenger on the Merchants and Miners' liner Fairfax when the ship drove her bow into the oil tanker a few miles off Scituate.

DIVE IN BLAZING SEA

The marine said he saw several men and women passengers and members of the crew jump in the sea and he saw one lifeboat filled with Negroes, apparently of the crew. They were sitting quietly, however, and not making any effort to lower the boat.

Nellie Todd, an entertainer on the boat, said there was no trampling of passengers and little disorder. She said the crew behaved well and that she saw one Negro waiter going about breaking open cabins and assisting passengers in getting out.

Jane Stone, chief stewardess on the Fairfax, told of assisting Mrs. Ida Berkowitz, 22, of Boston, and her son, Robert. Both Mrs. Berkowitz and the child died at the Carney Hospital from burns and the effects of smoke.

TELLS OF STRUGGLE

Mrs. Berkowitz refused to enter a life boat until a lifebelt had been placed around her child, Miss Stone testified. She described the difficulty with which she cared for the injured woman because of the latter's hysterical condition. To please Mrs. Berkowitz, Miss Stone said, she went to a state room and obtained pillow cases which she tore to shreds and made a rope with which to tie the child to its mother.

She placed Mrs. Berkowitz in a life boat, she said, and then allowed a male passenger to conduct her into a life boat where she remained for 10 minutes until she was assured the fire was under control.

Miss Stone estimated there were from 30 to 50 passengers in the same lifeboat. She praised the work of the crew in maintaining order.

William M. Smith, chief steward of the Fairfax, said "nothing in the world could have been done that was not done." Eleven members of his department were lost, he said.

Smith said all would have been saved had they not "lost their heads."

Sunken Tanker Owners Bring Suit For $350,000

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP.)—Suit for $350,000 has been filed in Federal Court here by the Lake Tankers Corporation, owner of the oil tanker Pinthis, against the Merchants and Miners' Transportation Company, owners of the steamship Fairfax, which rammed and sank the Pinthis off Boston June 10 with a loss of 47 lives.

Faulty Paper Blots Reporters' Passes

It looked like an easy morning's work for Director of Public Safety James M. Clark. All he had to do was to sign about 300 of the new identification cards that replace the old badges for newspapermen.

He took his pen in hand.

And then the trouble began. The pen dug into the paper, the ink flew out in a blot. He tried seven times again, but although ink flew in every direction, no signatures resulted. He shouted to his chief clerk, Robert Brown:

"I give up. The paper's nothing but a sponge. Send these back to the printers and have them printed over."

American Films Scored As Degrading by Priest

BOSTON, June 13.—(AP.)—The moving picture was accused of distorting and misrepresenting American life, creating hostility in foreign nations and affecting international relations, by the Rev. Frederic Siedenburg, of Loyola University, Chicago, speaking today at a meeting on neighborhood and community life in connection with the National Conference of Social Work.

Vice is made pleasant while it lasts, he said; working girls are always the intended victim of an employer's greed or desire; people rarely work unless they live in tenements, and virtue is generally made to appear depressing. Emphasis is placed on wealth, luxury and laziness.

International relations could be improved, he urged, if the American moving picture industry were declared a public industry, subject to government control with a federal motion picture commission to supervise production.

American films, Father Siedenburg asserted, are exploited in foreign lands. And frequently those most indecent and demoralizing which have been rejected by state censorship boards are selected for sale abroad.

Likeness of Carol To Supplant Boy King's on Coins

Gardner Fails to Mollify Pair Seeking Divorce

Judge Samuel H. Gardner essayed the role of peacemaker in a divorce suit heard before him today, but his efforts were ineffectual.

After testimony had been completed in the case of H. B. Elwell, of the West End, against Ellen G. Elwell, of Carnegie, charging desertion, Judge Gardner invited them separately into his chambers.

Elwell left the court room following the conference without greeting his wife. She then talked with Judge Gardner.

Mrs. Elwell afterward said that she would be willing to return to her husband for the sake of their two children, a daughter, 5, and a son, 13.

Judge Gardner said he had been unable to reconcile the couple. Elwell on the stand testified he had ceased to love his wife. He charged that she left him after he brought his cousin, Stanton Elwell, into his home as a roomer. Both the wife and the cousin denied his statement.

SHOALS ACTION SHELVED

WASHINGTON, June 13.—(AP)—Efforts to dispose of the government's hydro-electric power project at Muscle Shoals were definitely relinquished for the rest of this session of Congress after House conferees rejected a compromise between the Senate plan of government operation and the House proposal for private ownership.

Adjourning with an agreement to resume negotiations early at the next session, the House and Senate conferees left their second meeting convinced that further discussion at this time would be futile.

The compromise proposed by Senator Norris, Rep., Nebraska, on behalf of the Senate conferees, would have provided government operation of the power properties and private operation of the nitrate and fertilizer facilities.

SAYS REDS PLOT U. S. REVOLT

WASHINGTON, June 13.—(AP).—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, told the House Communist Investigating Committee the Soviet government was trying to bring a revolution in the United States by centering activities of the American Communist party on the masses.

Green named organizations which he said had been formed by Moscow representatives under direction of Soviet officials to accomplish the overthrow of the so-called capitalist government in the United States.

To bring about destruction of the American government, the Communist leaders in Russia felt, he said, that the American Federation of Labor would have to be overthrown and controlled. He continued:

"To accomplish this, there have been organized in this country the Workers (Communist) Party of America, the Trade Union Educational League, the Trade Union Unity League, the Pioneer Youth Movement, and the American Negro Labor Congress, directed from Moscow and thoroughly allied with the Communists international and the red international of trade unions."

Representative Fish (Rep.), of New York, chairman of the committee, announced it would open hearings in New York probably [illegible].

Missing Husband Sought by Mate

Marko Vukcevich, of 320 Shingiss street, McKees Rocks, disappeared May 29. He left his wife and seven children. At the washing machine office where he was crew manager and successful salesman, he was spoken of very highly as an honest, steady man. He gave no notice of his intention of leaving other than giving his wife $100 to pay her bills. She has none of it left now. They have been married 18 years.

Woman Judged by Costume Style Writer Tells Star Of 'The Florodora Girl'

HOLLYWOOD, June 13 (AP)—What a woman wears, when and how she wears it is a matter of regard and by what standards it is judged.

That is the opinion of Mrs. Demeree Charteris West, who expresses it in the March issue of Styles Critique.

"It is an injustice and a serious mistake not to dress before the camera and we must submit to the truth," declared Demeree in discussing the fashions of "The Florodora Girl" era and those of today.

"Men have their own ideas about what they like and admire. The man who does not take interest enough in the fair sex to form an opinion as to his likes and dislikes in the styles of women's clothes is too far gone to recuperate."

Other letters:

RIVAL TO BARNUM

"If my stenographer suddenly went Florodora my office morale would be lost.

"How could I dictate to that bundle of upholstery?

"Knock knees and bow legs may not look too good but those sleeves, that hat not to mention Flora's bustle would make the business world Barnum's only rival."

KENNETH E. BUTLER,
"1625 Jones street, San Francisco, Cal."

GREAT TIME SAVER

"The flapper of today when all is done and said makes less time on her whole attire than did my lady of yore on her head."

PAULINE PRINCE,
"316 South Eighteenth street, Omaha, Neb."

LIKE COMPLIMENTS

"One cannot be happy unless she is modern. We must live in the present era. The woman who wrote that men are attracted by looks and not fashions is all wrong for what is more pleasant than to have our own husband and sons tell us how lovely we look in our latest gown and style of hair dress."

LOUISE E. OLSON,
"4040 North Avers Ave., Chicago, Ill."

UNHAPPY STYLES MEMORY

"It is my hope and prophecy that those old fashions cannot come back during the time of our memory of the unhappy styles."

MRS. F. J. KILLEM,
"Herkimer Hotel, Grand Rapids, Mich."

FASHION MEANS NOTHING

"Why should we find fault with the way we dress today? It is what we are ourselves that counts."

JENNIE DEXTER,
"R. F. D. No. 6, Fulton, N. Y."

CAN THIS BE TRUE?

"The extremely short skirts of 1929 were as immodest as they were ridiculous. But I honestly think that the girls who wore them did so in a spirit of mischief. For almost invariably it was the older women who went them one inch better. The girls just dared them on."

ESTELLA McELHINEY,
"230 Cabot St., Beverly, Mass."

OKAYS LONG SKIRTS

"Grandma's long dress was all O. K. in its time but I don't want to see them come back quite so long or wide as she wore hers. They say women will adjust themselves to any style, so I think a little longer will be accepted by most of us."

MRS. JOHN R. CLISE,
"R. I. Box 41, Narrows Park, Cumberland, Md."

UP TO WEARER

"Some of your correspondents think the dressers of today are not respectable.

"Respectability and modesty do not depend upon the dresses but upon the woman who wears them."

MRS. JEAN CABON,
"Antrim Post-office, West Falls Church, Virginia."

FLORODORA GIRL DONE

"The Florodora girl has served her time never more to return. Women have been educated to the comforts of modern style and will never again submit to less comfort. Youth will always prevail and with youth, beauty."

MRS. M. LOEB,
"1230 Second Ave., Columbus, Ga."

SHE WAS A FLORODORA

MRS. FREDERICK GEBHARD

Mrs. Gebhard, prominent Washington, D. C., woman who as Marie Wilson more than 30 years ago was one of the original Florodora Girls. She left the stage to marry and has been 20 years widowed.

ROADHOUSE HIT AS YOUTH PERIL

BOSTON, June 13 (AP)—Roadhouses, improperly managed, were indicted as a serious menace to youth by Miss Jessie F. Bullard of Chicago speaking at a meeting of the International Association of Policewomen. Miss Bullard, a director of the association, said:

"Leisure time activities are today initiated and controlled too much by commercialized interests whose appeal is contrary to all standards of law and order and decency.

"The roadhouse presents problems in nearly every state. It creates a demand for liquor, vice and demoralized entertainment.

"Danger lies in its isolation. It blows on the flame of youth."

SUSPECT FOUND IN AUTO DEATH

HARRISBURG, June 13 (AP).—Keeton Kaldro, 30, alias Charles Kaldro, who was arrested in New York, has been sought by authorities here since September 21, 1928, when the body of a man was found in a burning automobile near Derry.

At first Kaldro was thought to have been the fire victim, but later he was reported seen in New York. Keeton Haldor, a cousin of Kaldro, came here from Reading in an unsuccessful effort to identify the body.

FOLSOM PRISON, Cal., June 13 (AP).—Newly established "finger and thumb" identification cards were taken from a prisoner on trial for grand larceny and from other prisoners awaiting action to break for freedom.

CURIOUS CREATURES

ARMED DRY MEN RAID HOBOKEN

HOBOKEN, N. J., June 13.—(AP)—Wearing revolvers strapped about their waists, between 100 and 120 federal prohibition agents secretly assigned from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania raided more than 30 places in Hoboken, including the Continental and Grand hotels, Kelly's, the Clan Broth House and Ye Olde Chop House.

In virtually every saloon or bar raided, quantities of liquor and beer were seized and one or more persons were arrested.

Twenty-five four-man squads, each with a leader who had received his orders from New Jersey's new prohibition chief, Dwight Avis, "Scourge of Detroit," struck simultaneously in the southeast end of the city, in the area bounded by the Hudson River, Third street, Washington street and the Hoboken-Jersey City line.

Youth, 16, Saves Boy from Drowning

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., June 13.—Arthur Johnson, 16, Isabella schoolboy, saved the life of John Wolosky, 9, when he plunged into the Monongahela River and pulled the lad to safety after he had gone under the water for the second time. The Wolosky boy was revived by artificial resuscitation.

STATE NAMES 4-H CLUB AIDES

WASHINGTON, June 13.—(AP)—Herbert J. Anders, of Montgomery County; Edna Hower of Northampton County; Harry L. Smith of Union County and Madelon Stitt of Juniata County have been selected to represent Pennsylvania at the Fourth National Boys and Girls' 4-H Club Camp, which convenes here June 18, the Department of Agriculture announced. Delegates from 39 states have signified their intention of attending.

The camps, an annual feature, provide opportunity for representative rural young people to study the work of the Agricultural Department and to confer on promotion of extension work among young people on farms.

Exertion in Parade Fatal to G. A. R. Man

WHEELING, W. Va., June 13.—Death removed from the ranks of the G. A. R., of West Virginia, William Elmer, 85, of this city, who has been taking part in the forty-eighth annual encampment. He died at his home as the result, it is believed, of over-exertion while taking part in the veterans' parade at Moundsville yesterday. Elmer fought at Gettysburg and was confined for a time in Libby prison.

AUTO HURTS 2, $55,000 ASKED

Two damage suits were filed in Common Pleas Court by individuals knocked down in the street by automobiles.

Norma Myers wants $30,000 for hurts to her arms, legs, hip and spine, because of being run down March 5, last by a truck of the Exhibitors Service Co. She was crossing Forbes at Atwood street at the time of the accident and is represented by Attorney Kivie Wolf.

George J. Erhardt struck by a truck of the Summons Co., April 8, last while crossing Anderson street at East Lacock street wants $25,000 damages for injuries. He was knocked unconscious and suffered concussion of the brain and claims his body was scarred and disfigured by the accident.

BALLOON RACE CASH NEEDED

HOUSTON, Tex., June 13.—(AP)—The possibility developed here that the national elimination balloon race scheduled to be held here July 4, may be cancelled because of lack of financial support.

Captain F. S. Wilbur, associated with the promotion of the event, announced that only $10,000 had been raised for expenses, or $4,000 less than the amount which Maj. Luke Christopher, of Washington, D. C., secretary of the National Aeronautical Association, had insisted must be posted.

Major Christopher, who is returning to Washingtotn after conferring with local officials, said at Fort Worth that unless the $14,000 was raised promptly the race may be called off.

Ransley Backs U. S. Army Air Field Bill

WASHINGTON, June 13.—(AP)—An appropriation of $3,370,619 for construction of technical buildings and utilities at Army air fields would be authorized under a bill introduced by Representative Ransley, (Rep.), Pennsylvania, acting chairman of the House Military Committee. The measure would provide varying amounts for miscellaneous building at 17 fields.

BOROUGH HEADS HEAR DAVIS ON TARIFF

Labor Secretary Tells State Group Prosperity Will Come When Bill Passes

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., June 13.—Declaring that unemployment, which malady now afflicts this country, must be solved if America is to continue its place as the world's greatest nation, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, speaking last night at the annual banquet of the Pennsylvania State Association of Boroughs in the Broadhead Hotel here, expressed the opinion that the final disposition of the present tariff measure should mean an inspiration to the employers and workers alike to take up again where they left off last October.

Davis arrived here from Coudersport in a Navy plane.

"I bring greetings from the President of the United States and regrets from your Senior Senator, Mr. Reed, who is detained in Washington because of the pending tariff measure. Whether it will meet with the approval of the high protectionists I cannot say. The Senate will vote upon it tomorrow and should dispose of it. If it does pass, I hope it will be an inspiration to employers and employes alike and will mean a return of prosperity to this country," he said.

$15,000,000 LOSS

Davis declared times are doubtful and the matter of current unemployment is the greatest problem. Last winter, he said, 3,000,000 men and women were jobless. This means a potential loss of $15,000,000 per day, if the average daily pay is $5.

Referring to the meeting of industrialists called by President Hoover at the White House last November, Davis declared it was the unanimous opinion that wages should not be cut. The ability of men and women to buy was recognized as the basis for real prosperity.

Delegates rapped practices of officers in the enforcement of the motor vehicle code. The storm broke following the address of Benjamin G. Eynon, Harrisburg, commissioner of motor vehicles, on "Co-operative Enforcement."

Eynon declared the practice of taking violators through several jurisdictions to reach a "favored" justice of the peace or alderman was illegal and against warnings of his department.

JUDGE SNEE TALKS

Speaking on the "legal side of municipal government," Judge Sylvester J. Snee, Pittsburgh, said the procedures complained of resulted in favoritism and division of costs and any summary conviction, obtained in this manner could be set aside by an appeal to court.

The law committee of which Attorney David L. Starr, Bellevue, is chairman, will report today on the resolutions to abolish the Public Service Commission, extending the powers of the burgess to vote in event of ties in council, and the repeal of the act of 1929 which provides for the collection and imposing of penalties for taxes.

The convention next year will be held concurrently with the meeting of the general assembly at Harrisburg.

Brownsville Rotary Delegate Named

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., June 13.—Fred J. Chalfant, president-elect of the Brownsville Rotary Club, was named delegate to the convention of Rotary International at Chicago, Ill., this month. Dr. H. D. Graham was appointed alternate.

Robbery Suspect Held in Brownsville

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., June 13.—Wilford Richards, 24, West Union, W. Va., wanted by authorities of West Virginia as a suspect in connection with a series of robberies was taken into custody by New Salem state police.

DRY MEN SMASH CAPONE PLANT

CHICAGO, June 13.—(AP.)—Crashing through solid steel doors with the aid of sledges and crowbars, Federal prohibition agents raided a brewery, which they said was owned by Capone interests.

The agents found 50,000 gallons of barreled beer, 75 half-barrels and in a huge fermenting plant 150,000 gallons of beer in process of manufacture.

Equipped with up-to-date electric refrigeration and every facility of the old-time brewery, the plant, agents said, was capable of producing beer as good as that made before prohibition.

One man, Charles Wynert, 30, was arrested. Books, records and checks were seized in the office.

The raid was conducted by Chief Alexander C. Jamie, who recently led raids on the Cotton Club and the Montmarte, reputed properties of the Capone interests.

COMBS FREED IN WICK CASE

BUTLER, Pa., June 13.—Judge William M. Parker, of Franklin, quashed the indictment against E. Lee Combs, of Pitcairn, when the case was called in the Butler Court.

Combs was charged with criminal libel by former Mayor George Bob Wick, following receipt of a telegram by Wick last November in which demand was allegedly made for $2,000 said to be unpaid on a contract between Wick and the writer. The telegram, it was charged, said failure to pay would result in an attack on the Wick administration in the Butler County Farmer, a publication promoted by Combs, who claimed he had not been paid in full for promoting a pension fund benefit for the Butler Police Department in 1927.

Judge Parker granted the motion of attorneys for Combs, who argued the indictment was defective in at least five respects.

Here's How To Get It!!

Just Follow These Simple Rules

1—Subscriptions can be taken in Pittsburgh and Suburban Towns within a 40-mile radius of Pittsburgh where the Daily Sun-Telegraph is delivered by carriers to the homes.

2—You are to solicit subscriptions upon the following basis:

A—Subscriptions for Home Delivery of the Daily Sun-Telegraph for 26 weeks from persons who are not already subscribers to the Daily Sun-Telegraph (be sure of this).

B—The subscriber must agree to have the Daily Sun-Telegraph delivered to his home six days a week and pay the Carrier Boy at the advertised subscription rate of 18 cents a week (after delivery). Have the subscriber merely write his or her name on the subscription blank as printed below. YOU ARE TO COLLECT NO MONEY.

C—Subscriptions may be brought to the Sun-Telegraph office by you in person or sent by mail. Subscriptions are to be brought or mailed to the Circulation Department, The Sun-Telegraph, Gazette Square, Pittsburgh, Pa.

D—Subscriptions should be taken to start at once.

E—You can start right today securing subscriptions—no waiting, no delay. Cut out and use the subscription blanks below.

3—When you get a subscription have the person write his or her name on the line in the subscription blank that says "subscriber." The subscriber should write his or her name in their own handwriting. On the next line below, where it says "Address," have them write in their address and whether the paper is to be delivered to the front door or rear door, or just where they want it delivered; also indicate whether they live in a flat or apartment building, and, if so, on which floor. Have them fill in their telephone number on the line in the subscription blank left for that purpose, and on the bottom line, where it says "Order Taken By," write your name and address.

4—Keep a record of all the subscriptions you secure, so that after you have turned in all your subscriptions you will have a list showing the name and address of the subscriptions you have taken. Bring this list with you when you are notified by mail that your subscriptions have been verified.

The hilly streets of Pittsburgh make for great coasting. Enjoy the speed and thrill of zooming down them on one of these dandy, battleship-steel, Sun-Telegraph coaster wagons. You haven't a wagon? That's a cinch. They're the easiest things in the world to get. All you need to do is to use a little of that spare time of yours—and the Sun-Telegraph will give you, scot-free, the beautiful coaster wagon pictured here.

IT'S JUST PLAY TO GET THIS SPEEDY COASTER WAGON

Your Mother, Your Aunts, Your Uncles and Dad Will Be Glad to Help You Win It!

All you have to do is to get four new readers to the daily Sun-Telegraph. That should be easy. The Sun-Telegraph is the paper, you know, with all the last-minute news, the funny funnies, and all the famous writers. You can probably find four of your relatives to sign up, tonight. Turn the subscriptions in, and as soon as they are verified by the Sun-Telegraph, you get your coaster wagon—ABSOLUTELY WITHOUT CHARGE. Perhaps your mother will help you by asking her friends—and maybe Dad can get you a subscription from some of the men in the office. The only thing you must be sure of is that the blanks are signed by NEW subscribers—people who haven't subscribed to the Sun-Telegraph within the past month, and who don't get the Sun-Telegraph now. And they must live in those sections of Pittsburgh where the Sun-Telegraph is delivered daily.

THE SUN-TELEGRAPH IS EASY TO SELL, BECAUSE EVERYONE WANTS TO READ IT

MRS. J. JAMES
801 So. Main St., Burlington, Iowa

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me during Change of Life. I had to lie down most of the time because I felt so weak and I could not stand the least bit of noise, I was that nervous. I felt blue and could cry if anyone looked at me. I could not sleep or eat but I am much better now and am able to work every day. I certainly do recommend the Vegetable Compound and I will write to any woman about it."—Mrs. J. James.

MRS. H. C. HENRY
286 Fuller Ave., St. Paul, Minn.

"I used to be as tired when I got up as when I went to bed. I had fainting spells and palpitation. It was my age. I found a Lydia E. Pinkham booklet in my mail box and I started taking the Vegetable Compound three times a day. I am now a well woman. Three of my neighbors know what it did for me so they are taking it too. I will write to any woman if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help her as it did me."—Mrs. H. C. Henry.

STEEL MERGER ANSWER FILED

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 13.—Attorneys for the Youngstown Sheet and Tube-Bethlehem Steel Companies, asked for dismissal of the suit brought by counsel for C. S. Eaton, Cleveland, in the name of Myron C. Wick, Jr., and International Share Corporation, to stop merger of the two companies.

Dismissal was asked in an answer filed by the corporation attorneys to an amendment to the original petition in the case. The answer admits that no formal appraisal of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation was made or is available. It states that data submitted by Price, Waterhouse and Company, auditors, was loaned to Frank Purnell, president of Sheet and Tube, but claims that Sheet and Tube had no legal authority to give this information to the committee representing opposing shareholders.

The answer avers that it is the intention to consummate the merger. It claims that dissenting stockholders have lost their rights as shareholders by demanding a cash value for their holdings, and therefore, have no case in court. It is also claimed that H. G. Dalton's financial interest in Sheet and Tube is greater than his interest in Bethlehem, and that he acted for the best interests of both companies.

Two Hurt in Auto Crash, Man Held

GREENSBURG, Pa., June 13.—As the result of automobile collision on the Lincoln highway at Jenners, Charles W. Haines, Greensburg, received a lacerated jaw. His companion, Elmer A. Shields, Greensburg, was held in Somerset county jail charged with being intoxicated.

Miss Marion Gibson, South Greensburg, a nurse driving the other car, of which her mother was also an occupant, was slightly injured.

Rotarian Leaders Of W. Va. to Meet

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., June 13.—Call was issued by Robert R. Wilson, of this city, West Virginia district Rotary governor, for the annual conference of district club presidents and secretaries to be held July 16-17 in Clarksburg.

PENNSYLVANIAN ADDS 25 POUNDS IN SIX WEEKS

Konjola, the New and Different Medicine, Proves Right Remedy In Stubborn Case.

Medicines, like men, are known for their deeds, not for promises and claims that are made for them. Konjola stands upon a bedrock foundation of successes and accomplishments. Scientifically compounded of 32 ingredients, it of which are the juices of roots and herbs of a medicinal value long known to science, this great compound has made an unparalleled record in the relief of ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. When given a fair trial, in most cases over a period of from six to eight weeks, it is rare indeed that this master medicine does not bring about the relief for which sufferers seek.

The Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, is prepared to tell you more about this justly famous compound. See him today and get the facts, true and verified. Mr. Levi L. Wise, 996 Fayette Street, Washington, near Pittsburgh, has an interesting experience to relate. Here is what he recently reported to the Konjola Man:

"I cannot praise Konjola too highly. It is a wonderful medicine. I had been suffering with stomach and liver trouble for a year or more. I tried many medicines and treatments but could not get any results. Gas formed and I bloated after each meal until there were times when I could scarcely get my breath. I had spots before my eyes and sometimes went temporarily blind. This was a terrible feeling.

"I read of the wonderful results people were getting as they appeared in the local papers. I have taken six bottles of Konjola and I have gained twenty-five pounds. The gas and bloating have disappeared and I have no trouble with my eyes. I sleep well at night, have a good appetite and feel stronger generally. My color has greatly improved and I really could not be in better health than I am today."

Mr. Levi's case is typical of thousands. Konjola's record has made this master medicine and tonic the most talked-of in America. Free from alcohol or nerve-deadening drugs. Konjola is safe and sure.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. FREE SAMPLES GIVEN by the Konjola Man. Konjola is also sold by all Dow Drug Stores, in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

The Venetian Mirrors, the Hollywood Vanity Proclaim Style-Rightness!

THIS SUITE is one of the great purchases of Style-Right Furniture made expressly for our June Bride Sales! It is priced so low that we are just a bit afraid you might think it isn't any good. But, of course, a suite made to sell for $200 IS GOOD. And that's this suite! Notice the beautiful simplicity of the design ... just enough of the maple overlays for distinctive contrast. The Venetian Mirrors are 1930's best style. The Hollywood Vanity, the 45-inch Dresser, the large Wardrobe and full-size Bed with Damask Seat Bench and Chair to match are finished in Walnut veneers combined with other good woods in the new "high polish" effect.

WE'D LIKE you to see this furniture ... you'll be happy with it, really, because it's the kind that caters to your comfort and feeling of well-being. But there's another good reason for buying this particular suite tomorrow. The savings you can make on it will pay the cost of furnishing your kitchen, and as Amos might say, "Ain't dat somepun'?"

COUNCIL CHANGES TERMINAL PLAN

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

William Pfarr,
On Vacation.
Dear Bill:

You know how we worry about spelling. There's something about misspelling a word that, well, causes you and me nervous dyspepsia and we go running to a physician for a prescription. It's been that way for, oh, 10 years or more.

And last night I was admiring the statuary in Schenley Park. I looked at the fountain in memory of Mrs. Schenley; I read the inscription on the Spanish War Memorial; I sauntered up to Phipps Conservatory and read about how many million pennies had made possible the Flag Memorial, and then . . .

I started to read the Latin and English inscriptions on the memorial to doctors of the county who had given their lives in the war, when . . . well, another attack of nervous dyspepsia.

The lower part of the inscription of that marble base reads: ". . . Is presented and affectionately dedicated

By their colleauges."

Always our family physicians have asked us what caused this nervousness, and advised more sleep, more regular hours, less work, more vacations. In fact, one good friend has been urging us to quit the newspaper business.

And then they go and spell colleagues . . . "colleauges."

Oh, doctor!

A couple of kids were playing in the halls of the Fairfax the other night—little girls and boys. Someone yelled: "There goes Wesley Eddy."

You know how the girls from 6 to 60 go for masters of ceremonies. Well, Helen Leavy, curly-haired and just 6, went in a big way. She was so excited in her chase to see him she stumbled, fell, and broke an arm.

Wesley heard about it last night. Today, with Mamma Eddy, a big picture and some goodies, Wesley is going into Helen's room and autograph it right in front of her.

Don't ask Charlie Holleran, Peter Cannon and "Boots" McLaughlin, three prides of Braddock's police force, why they get on those Palm Beach panties and leave the confines many afternoons a week. Just don't ask them, that's all. But we have seen them dancing and dancing at Kennywood afternoons. And they're nifty steppers, eh, James?

Adventure notes: Jimmy Lindsey, active in Pitt student affairs, is going to the South Seas this summer as an aside to that merry vagabond, Count von Luckner. The count, who knows his seven seas, has rented a windjammer and is taking with him a flock of kids with wealthy papas . . . Colston Warne, Pitt prof, will go to Amherst by way of Russia, with Mrs. Warne directing . . . Ottmar and Hanna Fuehrer, of Carnegie Museum, back this week from a jaunt to Florida's everglades, leave next for Glacier National Park to get more scientific samples.

Tom Fitzgerald, the railway executive, is learning to drive an auto. And Bill, your vacation ends tomorrow.

Gratefully,
ED PRENDERGAST.

Will Rogers Says:

BOSTON, Mass., June 13.

The Senate Committee demanding every little confidential paper exchanged between Mr. Hoover and Ramsey MacDonald (in supposed confidence), is just like a couple producing their marriage certificate in court, but would be made to go back and produce all the love letters they wrote to each other during the courtship. Mr. Hoover ought to be like the bishop: Tell 'em it's none of their business. But the Senate is not as scared of the President as they are the Bishop. The President don't control the Methodist vote. What does the Senate do with all the knowledge they demand from other people? They never seem to use it. Yours,

WILL.

THE OFFICE WIFE by FAITH BALDWIN

Anne Visits Eaton's Home To Help His Wife

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Larry Eaton, president of the Eaton Advertising Agency, is puzzled by the strange actions of his secretary, Janet Andrews, who has been in his employ for five years. When Miss Andrews starts to cry while taking dictation from him, Eaton allows her to go home for the rest of the day. Eaton then decides to get a new secretary. He plans to give Miss Andrews a long leave of absence and get pretty Anne Murdock to work in her place. Miss Murdock is secretary to the vice president of the concern. When Anne hears about the proposed change she is delighted. Anne proves that she can do the new work efficiently. Anne's sister, Kathleen, announces to the family that she has a new job as chorus girl. Her father disapproves. Ted O'Hara, who works with the agency, loves Ardeth and wants her for his wife. She explains to him that she prefers a business career. When Janet sends in her resignation Anne accepts the secretarial position. The Eatons, married a long time, are still fond of each other. Their interests, however, are vastly different.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VIII.

Mrs. Lucian had returned in time to hear part of the conversation, "How do you feel about it, Linda—Beauty and the Business Beast and all?" she asked.

"Well," Linda replied, "such problems are mercifully hidden from me. I don't visit Larry's office. Only comic-strip wives do that, I fancy. Look here, Larry, may I borrow this paragon some day? You used to lend me the priceless Andrews occasionally, you know."

"Oh, Linda!" sighed Jameson. "I thought you were above that sort of thing."

"It's not all curiosity," she assured him. "I really need help on the Hospital Committee's business. The volunteer secretary is too dumb for utterance, and I'm swamped in lists."

"I'll ask Miss Murdock," Eaton said, "if you'll remind me in the morning. Perhaps she'll come up some Saturday afternoon, if that's all right."

His wife smiled her thanks, nodded and picked up the cards she had dealt some time before.

Eaton's Luck
Jameson Doesn't Think He Appreciates It

Her partner, Jameson, looked at her over his inferior hand. She was really lovely. Her heavy dark hair was knotted at the nape of her fine neck and pierced with a jeweled pin. There were diamonds in the lobes of her close-set ears, but her eyes did not suffer by that difficult comparison. The decollete of her semi-formal evening gown displayed the curve of her magnificent shoulders and breast.

Jameson sighed. She was his friend's wife and Jameson was a nice person, yet he thought gloomily: "Confound it, some men have all the luck! Larry doesn't half appreciate his." And glancing at Eaton, marking his strength and his attraction, Jameson's gloom increased.

But if Eaton did not appreciate his wife, he appreciated his secretary. And on the following morning he found himself looking at her with increased interest and some trepidation. She was—exquisite. Jameson was right, devil take it! Some man would probably come along and marry her, and then where would he be?

Anne's Value
Attends to Numerous Details

Men, he pondered further, choose their wives through a combination of emotional motivation, propinquity and chance, but their secretaries are selected with a knowledge of certain definite needs—needs which do not alter with the years.

As he had said, Anne was becoming invaluable to him. He marveled how well and how swiftly she had fitted in; how easily she had taken Miss Andrews' place. Little by little, he had turned over to her the duties which Miss Andrews had grown into during her long years of service. Anne now attended to his personal bills, kept track of his club dues and his life insurance premiums. She was in communication with his brokers; she kept a separate engagement pad for his social activities and never failed to remind him of them.

Yes, she was invaluable. There were other things which, gradually, he might trust her. But if, as Jameson had said, he could be assured that she would leave him, what was the use?

The following morning he asked her: "Are you going to be busy Saturday afternoon, Miss Murdock?"

"No, Mr. Eaton."

As a matter of fact she had a matinee engagement with Betty Howard, but Betty would understand.

At Eaton's Home
Anne Longs for the Things She Sees

"It's not the office," he told her. "I shan't need you, but," he went on as Anne waited, aware of disappointment, "Mrs. Eaton is in a jam with one of her charity affairs. She asked me last night if she might borrow you. Miss Andrews helped her out occasionally in such matters."

"I'll be glad to," said Anne.

She afterward confessed to herself that she was curious. She welcomed the opportunity to meet Linda Eaton.

On Saturday, Anne and her notebook were called for at the office by Linda's car and chauffeur, and delivered at the apartment.

Anne waited in the library for some time before her employer's wife came in. She looked about her gravely; it was in a lovely room, restful, hospitable.

Anne's heart ached. Here were the things she loved, beautiful material things, valuable to her not for the luxury, the expenditure they represented, but for the satisfaction they afforded her senses and spirit. These were the things she longed for but would never attain.

Yet why shouldn't she attain them in a comparative measure? If she could ever have a little place of her own, somewhere, which would hold the things she would save up for.

Kathleen Leaves
Shares Flat With Other Chorus Girls

Her brows drew together. Lately there had been a loud explosion in the brick house outside of town. For Kathleen, now a decorative member of the "Sky Girl" company, had left home. She had explained patiently that it was too hard for her to travel back and forth for matinees and evening performances. So she had gone to live with three other girls in the company, sharing a flat over a flower shop in the East Forties.

Mr. Murdock had raged; Mrs. Murdock had commanded, and then warned with rare, distressing tears, but Kathleen had been firm.

"Annie, make them see. I wouldn't get home till all hours. It's so much easier this way and not expensive, with the four of us. And Lola is providing the furniture."

So Anne, with some effort, made them see as she herself saw. For, she argued, Kathleen was sensible. She was more than sensible, Anne thought secretly. Why shouldn't Kathleen have her good times? Why shouldn't she live her own life?

The battle had raged for weeks, but Anne had seen it through. Kathleen had been forgiven and now came out often to see her mother and

BECK'S RUN AND BALDWIN TOWNSHIP VOLUNTEER FIREMEN IN WATER BATTLE FEATURING ANNUAL CONVENTION

OBJECTIONS TO 'T' IDEA PREVAIL

New Bill to Provide for Future Work on 'Z' Basis In P. R. R. Traffic Zone

Public opinion seems to have won a decision over the opinion of a councilmanic majority regarding plans for improvements in connection with the new Pennsylvania Railroad terminal.

Set two weeks ago for the so-called "T" plan, which called for the cheapest system of street changes and improvements, Council members are changing their minds.

Forced to take some action, at least seven members obtained the introduction of a "T" plan ordinance and, at a committee meeting, pledged themselves tentatively to its support.

PLAN DREW OPPOSITION

The "T" plan provided for improvements involving no changes in grades, that resulted in a traffic arrangement shaped like an "S," and that was disapproved by the Better Traffic Commission, the Department of City Planning and practically every civic body in the city.

The "Z" plan, admittedly much more costly, provided a more elaborate system designed to take care of future traffic needs. Its cost was the deciding factor in the argument against it. Practically every member of Council recognized its effectiveness while they protested against the expense.

DRAFT NEW ORDINANCE

Now a new ordinance is being prepared, as a sort of amendment to the "T" plan ordinance on which no action has been taken. The new measure—councilmanic parlance—is the TZ ordinance. Really, as far as can be learned, it is the "T" plan with provisions that will make it possible to put at least a modified "Z" plan into effect when the city has sufficient money.

Thursday has been set for action on the compromise ordinance, although President of Council John S. Herron has made no official announcement. The compromise measure is to be introduced Monday, according to present plans.

In general it is said to follow the proposal of L. W. Monteverde of the Department of City Planning who, when the "Z" plan seemed lost entirely, started a movement for the compromise measure.

The libellant told the court that her husband had tried to choke her. She waited that night until her husband went to sleep and took the first train for Pittsburgh.

They were then living in Beaver. They have two children, 10 and 17.

New Trucks Used To Transport Steel

Specially built trucks with a capacity of 15 tons are being used by officials of the Homestead Steel Works to transport steel plates from the Homestead plant into McKeesport, it was announced today. They make the round trip between the two points in three hours and 45 minutes, and are working 24-hour shifts.

The experiment, officials said, was the result of the recent action of the Public Service Commission in granting railroads an increase of from 73 cents to $1.30 a ton on steel transported.

FIREMEN WAGE WATER BATTLE

Delegates to the sixteenth annual convention of the Allegheny County Volunteer Firemen's Association in session in Brentwood, today were electing officers for the ensuing year. The convention opened Sunday night and will close tomorrow night.

The firemen's street fair last night was featured with a water battle between members of the Beck's Run and Baldwin Township companies. Thousands of persons, it was estimated, lined both sides of Brownsville road, near the Brentwood borough building, and watched the Beck's Run volunteers emerge victors after a 20-minute fight. But not only contestants got wet. Spectators, too, were drenched when both teams raised the streams into the air.

Those nominated for offices, unopposed, are Edward H. Ebs for president; A. H. Leck, of Stowe Township, for secretary and Mark Roberts, of Carrick, for treasurer.

The convention will close tomorrow with a truck parade through Brentwood at 4 p. m., and a dance in the evening. More than 3,000 volunteers from 80 companies will be in the parade, which will include about 100 fire trucks, 10 bands and seven drum corps.

Double Jinx on Today, Friday the 13th

This is Friday, the thirteenth.

To believers in signs, omens or what-have-you in the way of fate fingers that point the way to fortune, good or ill, the day bulges with portent.

Few mortals are entirely free from superstition, and many there be this day who will watch the well-known "step" that it wanders not in the path of danger of life, limb or the purse.

Just when the double jinx sign first bloomed to poison the peace of humankind with its noxious pollen, history does not record, but the seeds probably took root in the same soil that produced gnomes, goblins, and the "little people" of Celtic origin.

Seriously, there are thousands possessed of culture and education, who today would not think of embarking on any new venture on Friday, the thirteenth. There are other thousands who, if ill luck befall this day, will blame on the hoodoo twins, Friday and 13.

The office sage says that the same care exercised on the other 364 days of the year would insure perfect safety for everybody and mark the superstition as a piece of plain God-given common sense.

The thirteenth will not fall on Friday again in 1930.

GULF TO BUILD OIL PIPE LINE TO OKLAHOMA

Pittsburgh to Get Refinery Of Mellon Corporation; Will Aid Eastern Growth

Plans for building a pipe line from Pittsburgh to eastern Oklahoma and the erection of refineries at Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and Toledo, are virtually completed by the Union Gulf Corporation, it was learned today. Work will be started at once, it was said, to connect the refineries with the general pipe line system of the Gulf Oil Company near Tulsa, Okla.

W. L. MELLON, PRESIDENT

The Union Gulf Corporation has been organized to secure substantial economies and to widen the marketing facilities of the Gulf Oil Corporation of Pennsylvania, which will operate and manage the line, it was said. W. L. Mellon is president of the Gulf Corporation of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Mellon said that the plan of the Union corporation is considered to be the most convenient and economical means of enabling the Gulf Oil to utilize fully the large production of its subsidiaries in the midcontinent, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas fields by directly supplying the company's present marketing facilities and to promote the growth and expansion of the company's business east of the Mississippi and particularly in Western Pennsylvania.

REFINERIES PLANNED

The new pipe line is to be built from Eastern Oklahoma to serve the three new refineries planned, one of them here. The connection with the Gulf Corporation's general line will be made near Tulsa.

It is believed that in view of the existing freight rates that the new line will be a substantial saving over the present method the corporation has of shipping refined products from its present refineries into the East. It also will make it possible for the company to economically reach new territory.

SHAW HERE FOR PORTRAITS

By PENELOPE REDD

Austin Shaw, unlike George Bernard of the same name, is a mild-mannered gentleman who portrays children as the creatures Barrie discovered for us in "Peter Pan."

Mr. Shaw, an Englishman long resident in Canada and the United States, has been in Pittsburgh completing portrait commissions.

Penelope Redd

Against a plain, neutral background, he concentrates his attention on painting the bust of the child, with but little emphasis on the frock. As a result of this procedure, winsome, merry, grave, or piquant little folk emerge as child characters. The whole is in the manner of Milne's "When We Were Very Young" with no reference to historic child portraiture. Austin Shaw does not paint little Van Dycks or Romneys, but modern children in a modern, forthright style.

The portraits of Barbara and Joan, the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Frank, of Inverness street, represent Shaw's skill.

Austin Shaw has just completed a portrait of Marjorie Frank, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Frank, of Aylesboro avenue.

While Mr. Shaw intended this type of portraiture only for children, many persons of maturity preferred it to a more formal style. Mr. Shaw has also painted portraits of Chase Adams and of Mrs. D. Herbert Hostetter, of Pittsburgh.

The majority of his portraits have been done on the West Coast and in Canada. He painted a portrait of Princess Eric of Denmark, the former Lois Booth. He is now on his way to Ottawa, Princess Eric's home city, to do portraits of other members of the Booth family.

Baltimore Fight Over Time To Go to Voters

BALTIMORE, June 13.—(AP.)—Baltimore's tangled battle over daylight saving time came out of the attorney general's office when that official ruled that the question was a proper one to be placed on the ballots for the November elections. For nearly a month the city has been operating on two times, part on the daylight plan and the rest on standard time.

The muddle was referred to the attorney general by Robert B. Ennis, president of the Board of Election Supervisors, after the City Council had raised the ballot question in a resolution during the controversy over whether or not the city should officially adopt the daylight plan.

TURNKEY, WAR VETERAN, DIES

Matthew Warren Conner, 48, for five years turnkey at Morals Court, died last night in the United States Naval Hospital at League Island, Philadelphia, where he had been a patient six weeks. CIRCUS CHEERS SICK CHILDREN

Alice, the elephant of the Johnny Jones Circus, made her first trip to the Children's Hospital yesterday afternoon with other animals and freaks from the Circus.

The children were wheeled in their cots to the wide balconies, and viewed the show in the drive at the entrance of the building. They were noisy in their admiration and approval of the animals—the racing monkeys, Silver King, the dog; the dancing monkeys, and the acrobatic dogs.

The midgets and the giant visited the children on the balconies, and were greeted with handshakes and shouts. The clowns and the dancing monkeys were among the favorites of the performance, as were the racing monkeys, Pat Murphy and Barney Oldfield, and the giant, Count Olaf, who is 8 feet 6 inches in height.

EMBLEMS USED CENTURY AGO WILL UNFURL

Schools to Celebrate Day; Artillerymen Will Fire Salute in Park at Dawn

Three rare old flags will be unfurled in Pittsburgh tomorrow, Flag Day, on the one hundred and fifty-third anniversary of the birth of the Stars and Stripes.

One of these, the "Star Spangled Banner," with 15 stars and 15 stripes, will be flung to the breeze for the first time since it was used as the official emblem in the city centennial celebration in 1916.

Two others, original national flags that date back more than 100 years, will be displayed indoors on the walls of the museum of the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania, as it is feared to expose their frail material to the elements.

SALUTE TO BE FIRED

The bringing forth of the historic banners will mark active observance of Flag Day here. The anniversary was celebrated today in many public and parochial schools, and at dawn tomorrow the national salute to the flag will be given under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution.

The salute will be fired from Flagstaff Hill, Schenley Park, by a section of the One Hundred and Seventh Field Artillery commanded by Col. Clinton T. Bundy and Capt. H. W. Higby. Dr. S. B. Linhart and Col. Franklin Blackstone will represent the Sons of the American Revolution. James Moore, superintendent of parks, will raise the flag.

MARKED FORBES CAMP

The Imhoff flag, donated to the Historical Society by Mrs. Wallace Imhoff, was used for many years to mark the site of Gen. Forbes' encampment, where an old tree stump stood on the Imhoff property at 6805 Penn avenue. The flag once belonged to Silas Dock, Mrs. Imhoff's great-grandfather, who carried it with him in the gold rush to California in 1849.

Previous to that time it had been displayed during the Mexican War because of its historic interest. It contains 13 stars, indicating it had been used before 1795.

The third flag in the collection belonged to the late Burd S. Patterson, former newspaperman and secretary of the Historical Society. It also contains 13 stars, one of these in the center of the constellation being of mammoth size, a type of flag used during the administration of President Washington.

SOOST ASSURED ELECTION AS CITY G. O. P. CHAIRMAN

COYNE TO QUIT, CITY LEADERS DECLARE

Fight on Armstrong Fades as County Chiefs Arrange Annual Confab

Committeemen and women of the Republican party will elect party officers for the city and county committee at a meeting at 2 p. m. tomorrow in North Side Carnegie Music Hall.

State Senator James J. Coyne was reported to have declined another term as chairman of the city committee, and he will be succeeded unless all signs fail by Traffic Court Magistrate W. J. Soost of the Eleventh ward.

Mrs. W. W. Robinson, of the Eleventh ward, vice chairman of the city committee, opposed Mayor Charles H. Kline for re-election last fall, and is threatened with political decapitation. Her successor probably will be Mrs. Lillian Borgart, of the Fourth ward, an employe of the State Employment Bureau.

MURRAY, EINSTEIN SAFE

Robert Murray, of the Twenty-third ward, chief clerk of the Board of Viewers, and State Senator Morris Einstein, of the Twenty-fifth ward, appear to have no opposition for re-election as secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Affairs in the county organization seem to be similarly placid, and it is generally predicted that County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong will be returned as chairman without a struggle.

The secretary of the county committee, under party rules, is appointed by the chairman instead of being elected by the convention, and there is no doubt Armstrong will appoint the incumbent, William H. Ziefel, of the Seventeenth ward, chief clerk of the Board of County Commissioners.

MRS. FRAZIER RETIRES

Mrs. A. G. H. Frazier, of the Twenty-third ward, has been vice chairman of the county committee for six years, but today said she is not a candidate for re-election. No one has been prominently named as her successor.

J. Boyd Ewer, of the Twenty-seventh ward, a close personal friend of State Senator M. G. Leslie, has been treasurer of the county organization for a number of terms, but is reported as showing an inclination to relinquish that office. Rumors have it that his successor will be C. J. McBride, of the Thirty-first ward, an appointee of Commissioner Armstrong's on the board for the assessment and revision of taxes.

BUSINESS MEN HIT STREAM POLLUTION

Commerce Chamber Backs Bill for Cleaning Up Waters in Pennsylvania

The Chamber of Commerce, by unanimous board action, yesterday adopted the recommendation of 11 committees and councils within the chamber which had given serious attention to stream pollution problems in the last few months. The board authorized President James Rae to appoint a special committee to study the subject, and to consider all legislation that likely will be offered to the state Legislature as in past years.

In another action the Chamber went on record opposing the Senate bill proposing an amendment to Section 4 of the Interstate Commerce Act which would remove the authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission to grant permission to carriers to meet water competition through the Panama Canal.

Considering the phases of the Howell Bill before the Senate, an amendment to Section 15 of the Interstate Commerce Act, providing for a fair return to the carriers and recapture of excess earnings, which would ultimately result in government ownership of the railroads, the Pittsburgh Chamber backed the Chamber of Commerce of the United States by opposing the bill.

Social conversation becomes increasingly "debutantean" with the approach of June debut teas and dinners and dances. Of course there'll be many entertainments next winter for the buds of June. I've heard that the Frank Scott Willocks will give a ball in the Pittsburgh Club on Monday evening, December 29, for their debutante daughter, Ruth. Ruth will be presented at a tea her mother will give in the Allegheny Country Club on Friday, June 27.

Added to the list of debutantes for the coming season is the name of Martha Verner Legate, daughter of Thomas Legate of Sewickley. Martha was maid of honor during the Thanksgiving holidays, I believe.

BABY BLUE AND PINK TO BE FAVORED FOR EVENING WEAR

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, JUNE 13.—The shades of evening are pink and blue, as far as the ballroom and theater are concerned, any way. Lat ever so ma various sh pink, and rather insi of the pale pale blue tones of former years seems to be absent. The shades used are so cleverly handled that they can be worn by the woman of mature years without bestowing on her that "babyish" effect that one somehow used to associate—and rightly so—with frocks of pastel pink and pale blue. It is no doubt because frocks of such colors are treated to sophistication in line and detail, with an absence of "fussy" trimming. Thus the ultra naive and the extremely sophisticated find their expression in a modern evening frock.

DESPITE the liking shown for short wraps, there are many women here who prefer a wrap done in the grand manner, and for these clients, therefore, most couturiers are careful to include wraps of regal aspect in their various collections. Such a wrap is the sketched which is from the current Redfern collection. It is of delicate aquamarine blue satin combined with a beautiful white fox. The especial chic of the coat is to be found in the cleverly cut circular flounces which form the skirt of the garment. It dips in a curving line from a point high at one side and falls in flaring godets to the heels at the opposite side and back.

PALE PINK crepe romain to be exact, a delightful delicate shade of shell-pink, makes the evening dress from Maggy Rouff. A low-placed peplum, cut in full circular lines, ripples down to the center front, and is lost in the folds of the deep circular flounce which forms the lower part of the skirt. Folds of the material are laid in at either side above the hips and give a soft, supple bloused line to the bodice which is possessed of a clever neckline.

ROSSLYN FARMS WOMAN'S CLUB MAKES GARDEN FETE OF JAPANESE PROGRAM

Group of Girls Dressed In Nipponese Costumes Give Dainty Dances

The Rosslyn Farms Woman's Club, which has been studying different countries this year, chose to make a fete of its Japanese program and this it did last night with great success. The sunken garden and its terrace at Mrs. S. S. Haudenshield's home in Edgecliff drive made a lovely setting for the affair. Jars of roses added to the garden's natural beauty and Japanese lanterns in the trees and over trellises gave the last touch of the picturesque. Tables placed on the lawns held vases with single roses after the Japanese decorative scheme of using only one bloom at a time.

Mrs. C. G. Thornburg directed the program. The dance of the parasol and the Japanese sandman dance were daintily done by eight girls in costume. Louise Schempp, Virginia and Ann Thornburg, Suzanne Haudenshield, Jane Moore, Marguerite Degnan, Ruth Hammond and Elsie Herrington, and five older girls also in costume, joined in the chorus of a Japanese song given as a solo by Mrs. C. P. Gallichet accompanied by Mrs. H. M. Austin. A Japanese legend was read by Mrs. W. C. Aber.

All those on the program were costumed, as were the hostess and her aides, Mrs. Forest Alter, Mrs. Garland Thornburg, Mrs. John Church and Mrs. G. A. Price.

The luncheon given yesterday by the social service committee of the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind was one uninterrupted panegyric to Mrs. Moses Ruslander, the honor guest. From the first words of Frank Wilbur Main, who served as toastmaster to the last speaker on the program there was nothing but praise for this woman who has probably done more than any other for the blind of Pittsburgh and who was responsible for the organization of the Association 20 years ago. Other speakers were John Potter, Mrs. F. G. Smith, a pioneer with Mrs. Ruslander, who, too, has seen their early labors brought to fruition; John Dunling, Leo Ruslander, the honor guests's son, Mrs. J. H. Briggs, Lee Rosenthal, H. R. Latimer, Mrs. D. T. Jonas and Miss Mary Burbank, president of the Blind Women's Club. Mrs. William L. Stone gave a delightful program of contralto solos, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Betty Stone.

Lamb patties which are ground lamb cakes wrapped with bacon, served with fried apple rings is another delicate, substantial and wholesome dish. Or you might serve lamb tidbits, which consists of small squares of lamb steak marinated with French dressing, slipped onto a large skewer with alternate slices of tomato and broiled, with bacon curls and sausage.

One of my favorite desserts and one which never fails to win me friends and great admiration for my culinary ability, is apple pie with cheese crust. I serve it every time I particularly want to impress some one with my housewifery skill—and it never fails me.

Perhaps you'd like the recipe, too.

Pare 5 or 6 sour apples, cut rather fine and mix with ½ cup of sugar, ½ teaspoon of cinnamon and ¼ teaspoon of salt. Line nine-inch pieplan with pastry. Roll out the top crust, spread soft pimento cheese thickly over ½ of it. Fold, roll out again and prick.

Fill the pastry with the prepared apples, moisten the edge of the crust, cover with the cheese crust and flute the edges. Bake 15 minutes at 450 degrees Farenheit, then decrease the temperature to 350 degrees and continue baking 30 to 40 minutes.

Another especially good and fruity recipe is this one for date dessert.

One cup each of dates and nuts are required. Make a batter of ½ cup of sugar, 2 well-beaten eggs, ¼ teaspoon of salt, 2-3 cup of flour and 1 teaspoon of baking powder. When thoroughly mixed stir in the dates and nuts, which have been chopped. Bake in a cake pan, break apart while warm and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Whipped cream is a delicious garnish, but any kind of cream or cream dressing one happens to have may be used.

SPRING ONIONS WITH CHEESE SAUCE—Heat 2 tablespoons bacon fat in a saucepan, add 2 bunches spring onions that have been cleaned, washed and left whole. Cook uncovered about 5 minutes, turning continually with a fork. Add enough boiling water to cover and cook rapidly until tender, about 15 minutes. In meantime prepare the following cheese sauce. Add ¼ cup of cheese cut fine to 1 cup evaporated milk and cook over boiling water until the cheese is just melted. Add ¼ teaspoon prepared mustard and 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Arrange onions on hot toast and add cheese sauce. Serve at once. Recipe serves six.

SWISS STEAK EN CASSEROLE—Have 3 pounds round steak cut 1½ inches thick. Put the steak on a board and gradually pound ½ cup flour into the steak, first on one side and then on the other. Season with salt and pepper. Cut a clove of garlic in half and rub over the steak. Brown a sliced onion in 3 tablespoons hot fat and when brown set the onion to one side of the frying pan. Add the meat and let brown on both sides. Then add boiling water to cover, cover the pan closely and let simmer 2 or 3 hours until tender.

PEACH BATTER PUDDING—Drain halves of canned peaches. Place a thick layer of fruit in the bottom of a baking dish and pour cottage pudding batter over it. Bake in an open at 375 or 400 for 30 minutes.

* * *

COTTAGE PUDDING BATTER—Sift 1½ cups flour with 3 teaspoons baking powder. Cream ¼ cup shortening and add ½ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt and 1 egg well beaten. Then add ½ cup

Sharkey, in Own Story, Denies Body Punch Low

GERMAN WINS WORLD TITLE ON FOUL

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Sharkey Runs True.
Climax of Foul Evil.
Bucs End Two Streaks.
Browns Seeking Punch.
Cleveland New Threat.
Jinx Pursues Owens.

VERDICT PROVES AMERICAN FAIRNESS

AT LEAST THEY can't say that Jack Sharkey didn't run true to form right up to the last as a fighter who could be depended upon for only one thing, that being to do just what he hadn't been expected to do. After the fistic experts, making careful allowance for Sharkey's habit of going contrary to calculations and crossing up the dopesters, had figured last night's heavyweight championship affair from all other possible angles, the former sailor turned in and did the thing least anticipated by losing on a foul when he appeared to have the battle almost as good as won.

Max Schmeling

As a result of this most unsatisfactory ending that ever marred a fight for the big title, which never before was lost on a foul, the greatest of all ring championships has left the United States for the first time since it became clearly established; the man who should have won it easily through a fighting superiority that was unquestionable stands as a discredited battler in his own country, and the crown goes as a gift on a silver platter to a practically defeated contender who did nothing to acquire it but take a beating.

AND THAT'S THE climax of the fouling evil against which the boxing commissions of the country have been vainly urged for many months to take greater precautions. Some such step as a rule that would make the offender forfeit every dollar coming to him might have checked the growing danger, but they failed to discourage carelessness by making the penalty sufficiently heavy, and now the game has to suffer for it. Promoters may figure on another financial killing through a return match, but it won't be easy to make the public go wild over a new affair in which Sharkey is involved, and a bout between Schmeling and Phil Scott, Prime Camera or any other foreigner won't break any attendance records, either. It's a swell mess all around, with the highest title in the fistic kingdom being held by a man who is clearly not a champion—in the real sense of the word.

Willie Ritchie won the lightweight championship from Ad Wolgast on a foul in 1912, and Jackie Fields took the welterweight scepter from Joe Dundee in the same way last year, but this is the first time that such a happening has marred a class in which the top-notchers of the old days rarely were accused of such an offense. The one consoling feature of it all is that the handing of the title to Schmeling demonstrates to the world American fairness and sportsmanship. The award of the biggest of all championships to a beaten foreigner because he was the victim of a breach of the rules must certainly disprove the assertion of Phil Scott and others that fighters from other countries were not given a square deal in the United States.

IN NONE OF the other instances of Cardinal misfortune this year have the Red Birds been hit as hard as in the loss of Chick Hafey, who has been put out of the game for an indefinite period by a return of the sinus trouble that he has been fighting since 1927.

With the aid of spectacles during the last two seasons, Hafey regained his former ranking as the Cards' main offensive weapon and one of the leading right-hand long-distance hitters in the majors, and without his punch the St. Louis entry will hardly amount to much as a pennant contender.

Chick Hafey

HOWEVER, THE DECISION of the attending eye specialist that Hafey must return home for a long rest does not necessarily mean the ending of Chick's major league career, as some St. Louis reports have stated. George Sisler, the victim of the first serious case of sinus trouble in the big show, was out of the game for the entire season of 1923, but since that time he has batted above .300 in five out of six seasons, and even now, at the age of 37, he has shown enough of his old ability to take the first-base job in the Braves lineup away from Johnny Neun.

THE SUCCESS OF the Pirates in defeating the Giants yesterday for only the second time in their last 12 meetings had a rival feature in the fact that for the second time in succession, Remy Kremer lasted the whole distance on the slab for the Bucs. That's only the fourth complete game he has pitched in a total of 14 starts.

New York, which had won nine games in succession before yesterday's spill, is the second club to be stopped by the Rovers in a little more than two weeks after a long winning streak. On May 27, Larry French and his Pirate mates beat the Cardinals at Forbes Field, 8 to 5, after the Missourians had registered eight consecutive victories.

BOTH ST. LOUIS clubs are having their outfield troubles. While

FIGHT BY ROUNDS

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP.)—The blow-by-blow account of the Jack Sharkey-Max Schmeling fight here last night follows:

ROUND ONE

ROUND TWO

Sharkey seemed to argue with his seconds in the corner and came out on his toes, boxing carefully. The black thatched German dove in with a left and right to the body and Sharkey hammered both hands to the head.

They clinched, wrestled and Sharkey pumped a left to the head. He met Max coming forward again with a sharp right to the cheek and stabbed the German off balance with a pretty left.

Sharkey grew more aggressive, but ever watchful of Max's right, and he stabbed for the head. Max did not seem to mind, although he stepped into two uppercuts and he banged a left hook and another short right on Sharkey's head. The Sailor earned to his fight hooking left to the body and right to the head, but Max sneaked over with a left hook, and Sharkey banged the German with a straight right.

ROUND THREE

Sharkey tore after the Teuton and they swapped rights to the chin on the ropes. Both were clean-jarring punches.

Max sneaked over another right and banged on Sharkey's body in close, while the Sailor tried to tie him up. A short right full on the chin shook Schmeling. A barrage of rights sent him floundering.

Another right sent him to the ropes and he came out badly hurt and holding for dear life. Sharkey, cool, stepped into Schmeling with a left and another right. He was taking his time.

ROUND FOUR

Schmeling's seconds rubbed his neck with ice and gave him deep draughts of smelling salts while Sharkey sat across the ring placently awaiting the kill. Sharkey stepped into Max with a left jab, a right punishing blow to the chin and disdainfully brushed aside Max's countering lefts.

The dogged German rallied and fired a right hand bolt into Sharkey's chin that shook the American. The crowd roared as it landed and Sharkey tossed caution aside for a second to fling both hands wildly at the crouching Schmeling's head.

Jack smashed both hands to Schmeling's body. He crossed a wicked right to the German's chin but Max stayed up. As they clinched Sharkey tried repeatedly to twist Schmeling. Max went down under a left to the body claiming a foul.

He could not rise. There was another mad scene as the seconds stormed into the ring.

After a conference between referee and judges, Schmeling was declared the winner on a foul.

JACK SCORES JUDGE RULING BLOW FOUL

By JACK SHARKEY

NEW YORK, June 13.—It was a left hook to the stomach which caused Max Schmeling of Germany to drop to the canvas in the fourth round of our bout at the Yankee Stadium last night. It was as clean a knockout punch as was ever scored.

At the time the final punch went over Schmeling was a beaten man. I had found it easy to hit him on the chin and in the body with left and right-hand punches.

The German had little defense against my left hand. I was able to reach him with straight left jabs, while he was also wide open for left hooks.

Later I started pumping right-hand blows to the German's body.

...AYED FOR BODY

When Max began to slow down, I drove some heavy left-hand socks to the body. I soon found that Schmeling did not stand up as well under body blows as when hit on the chin.

Late in the fourth round, I feinted Schmeling and as he plunged forward I nailed him with a terrific left hook in the stomach. I could feel my padded glove sinking deep in to my opponent's stomach. He dropped to the canvas in a heap.

Referee Jimmy Crowley started to count, but the gong sounded before the count had gone very far.

Referee Crowley stated at the time he did not see any low blow. He later consulted with the judges. I understand that Harold Barnes, one of the judges, ruled that I had struck Schmeling low.

When the final punch was delivered, my back was toward the judge who claimed the blow was low. He was not in a position to see the action.

HAD GOOD LEAD

At the time the bout ended, I was well out in front. Most of the boxing experts at the ringside declared I had won every round.

Schmeling is a promising young

MAX REGRETS FLUKE WIN

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP.)—Max Schmeling was a sick and none too happy fighter as he lay on a rubbing table in his dressing room last night and regretted that he won from Jack Sharkey on a foul.

Schmeling's groin was packed in cracked ice and he appeared sick as Dr. William Walker, of the New York State Athletic Commission, completed his examination and announced the German heavyweight was suffering from a spasm in the left scrotum, indication of a severe blow in that region.

REGRETS FOUL

"I hate to win like that," Max said as his handlers lifted him up and rubbed him with alcohol. The only marks on the German were slight swellings of both eyebrows, mute indications of the punches Sharkey threw into the German's head for three and a fraction rounds only to lose on a foul in the fourth.

"For three rounds," continued Max, "I left Sharkey punch so I could find out what he has. He could not hurt me. He is not so good a fighter as I thought. I could feel him change in the

NEW YORK, June 13.—The Pirates had something to be thankful for today. At least the Pittsburghers felt good over their stunt of yesterday. The flag-seeking Giants were after a tenth straight victory, but they were forced to bow in defeat as a result of the clever pitching of Remy Kremer and the smashing attack of his mates. The score was 10-7.

Larry French and Pete Donohue will fight it out in the final this afternoon. The latter apparently is fond of his new baseball address and under the inspiration of the play of his clever mates, Peterkin may prove a steeper barrier for the Buccos than he was when he flung the ball for the honor and glory of old Cincinnati.

BUCS START EARLY

An old-time Pittsburgh offensive put Kremer over yesterday. The Buccos teed off on Fred Fitzsimmons in the first inning when they piled up five tallies. Herb Pruett came in and subdued the Buccos over a long stretch of innings, but in the seventh the Ensmen drove a wedge through the left-hander, who owns all the dopey stuff and who early in his major league career was the nemesis of Babe Ruth.

The two big rounds produced nine of the Pirates' 10 tallies. Yet these runs did not put the contest on the ice by any means. McGraw has a great team and a terrible

JACK MISSES RIGHT AIMED AT MAX'S HEAD

Chicagoan Once Rejected Schmeling

CHICAGO, June 13.—(AP.)—Among the "I knew Schmeling when—" boys is Rudolph Frolik, former contender for the welterweight championship of Germany and now boxing instructor at Morton Junior College at Cicero.

In one of his bouts for the German welter title, Frolik says, he was offered a 17-year-old youth named Max Schmeling as a second.

"While I wasn't a great deal older myself, I didn't like the idea of a young lad being my second and refused his services."

Net Stars Advance In Philly Tourney

PHILADELPHIA, June 13.—(AP.)—Miss Dorothy Andrus, Stamford, Conn., and three Philadelphia girls advanced to the semi-final round of the women's Pennsylvania and Eastern states tennis championships at the Merion Cricket Club yesterday. The local players are Miss Townsend, Miss Virginia Hilleary and Miss Cecelia Riegel.

Miss Hilleary, middle states champion, advanced by defeating Miss Eleanor Cottman, Baltimore, 6-2, 6-2.

OFFICIAL FIGHT FIGURES

NEW YORK, June 13.—(INS.)—Official figures on the financial return from the Sharkey-Schmeling fight a gross of $749,934 with a net after the state tax has been deducted of $711,668.

By contract Schmeling and Sharkey each get 25 per cent of the net gate, or $177,917 each.

The Yankee Stadium Corporation gets 10 per cent as rent for the park.

The preliminary fighters and other expenses also represent a deduction.

From the fight itself the Milk Fund derived approximately $130,000. To this in percentages from radio broadcasting, motion picture, program and other concessions there is an increment estimated at $25,000.

The Milk Fund benefit, therefore, gives the babies $155,000 with the possibility that this figure may be increased in the final reckoning by perhaps $5,000.

Grays, Giants Meet At Forbes Field

The Brooklyn Royal Giants arrived in Pittsburgh this morning for their five-game series with the Homestead Grays, three of which will be played at Forbes Field, starting this evening at 6:30 o'clock. There will be a doubleheader tomorrow afternoon, then the teams switch activities to the Sharon Elks' park for a second dual bill on Sunday afternoon.

Int. League Prexy Upholds Protest

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP.)—The protest of Newark against a decision against the club in a game with Baltimore June 8 was sustained yesterday by Charles H. Knapp, president of the International League.

The game, played under protest by Newark after the first inning and won by Baltimore 6 to 1, was ordered replayed on a date to be decided.

SHARKEY, FAR AHEAD, SINKS LOW BLOW

By HARRY KECK.

Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, June 13.—New York today still was stirred over the strange doings up at the Yankee Stadium last night when 70,000 dazed spectators who paid approximately $750,000 saw a badly beaten German champion, Max Schmeling win the heavyweight championship of the world on a foul from Jack Sharkey, of Boston, the American champion, amid scenes of wild excitement that were highly reminiscent of the same Sharkey victory over Fainting Phil Scott, the English champion, at Miami, Fla., last February. Schmeling is the tenth champion in heavyweight history.

Maxie won the royal sable in one thrilling moment of action just before the bell ended the fourth round on a foul called by one of the judges at the ringside, who said Sharkey struck the invader low with a left swing as he sidestepped.

MAX GETS PASTING

At the time the blow landed, Schmeling was taking one of the worst pastings in the annals of competition for the $1,000,000 bauble and did not appear to have a chance in a thousand to win. He had been plodding steadily after Sharkey who, for once in his life, was boxing in cool, deliberate fashion and absolutely taking no chances.

The Gob was making his opponent come to him and stabbing and hooking him off and uppercutting him in the clinches. Sparing of his right, he used it only when the real openings presented themselves, and the crowd was admiring his great exhibition when the untimely finish came. He had rocked Schmeling badly several times in the third round and Maxie was lucky to be able to find his corner when the bell ended the round in that session.

The referee, Jimmy Crowley, did not see the deciding blow and was in a quandary about what to do under the circumstances. As Maxie went down, groveling and grimacing, he rushed over to him and tried to help him up and then hesitated as the bell rang. The managers and other seconds of the principals piled into the ring and bellowed their claims. The well-known state of affairs, known as pandemonium, reigned.

PANDEMONIUM REIGNS

For a time it looked like a free-for-all might develop, with both managers beseiging every one in sight. Meanwhile Crowley, acting under the rules of the New York Commission, conferred with the judges. He first asked Charley Mathieson, a veteran official, sitting on the far side of the ring from where the blow struck. He was not in a position to tell whether or not it was low and admitted as much. However, Harold Barnes, sitting directly in front of where the left went home, unhesitatingly said it was a foul.

When Barnes' verdict became known, Johnny Buckley, manager of Sharkey, tried to swing the deal his way by prancing up and down in the ring and yelling:

"He says 'Foul'—a foul for Sharkey!"

Not to be outdone, Joe Jacobs, valuable manager of Schmeling, set up a counter cry:

"Maxie wins," he roared, "He says it's a foul—a foul for Schmeling!"

Then there was Joe Humphreys, the colorful announcer, standing outside the ropes waiting for them to get the matter settled.

Yarosz Is Winner In Bout With Rudy

NEW BRIGHTON, Pa., June 13—Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, won the decision over Young Rudy, of Charleroi, in a thrilling 10-round main bout of the initial outdoor boxing show of the season here last night. Yarosz weighed 142 and Rudy 145.

Nick Polis, 162, Aliquippa, defeated Harry Spencer, Washington, Pa., in the six-round semi-final. They are middleweights.

Nick Altrock Says:

CHICAGO, June 13.—When I came into Chicago with the team I had my portable typewriter disguised as a week-end case. Not even writers are safe here any more and I am not taking any chances of a bullet in case I favor Brooklyn over the Cubs. Your Uncle Nick is very cautious when he is in this city where they take you for a ride. He will not even accept a street car transfer from a stranger. I said to Griff this morning: "I am always afraid of being knocked off in Chicago." Griff said "Don't be foolish. They only shoot you when you know too much, so you should worry."

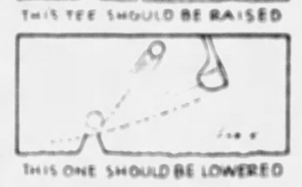
GOLF As Champions Play It

THIS TEE SHOULD BE RAISED



THIS ONE SHOULD BE LOWERED

How should the height of the tee be determined?

Answered by
WILLIE MacFARLANE

Former National open champion and one of the World's great golfers. Bermuda Open, 1929, Bermuda Mid-Ocean, 1929.

The height of a tee can be determined only by the results of the drive. Should one be topping a great deal a high tee will help to cure that. This, of course, works both ways, as a lower tee will help the golfer who is inclined to hit the ball too high in the air.

The majority of players tee the ball on the low side and I feel sure that if the ball were teed slightly higher they would be greatly encouraged with the results.

Stella Walsh Wins Twice in Toronto

TORONTO, Ont., June 13—Stella Walsh, Cleveland flash, turned in a double win in an international women's track and field meet here last night. She defeated Kay Griffiths, of Toronto, and Myrtle Cook, of Montreal, in the 60 meter dash in 7 2-5 seconds and then broke the Canadian 220 meter record with a 25 3-5 seconds' performance. Agnes Morris, of Hamilton, was second and Alice Stone, of Toronto, third. The former record was 25 4-5 seconds.

MAYOR KLINE AT RINGSIDE

NEW YORK, June 13.—Pittsburgh did not need to bulge an inch in national splendor when Mayor Charles H. Kline stepped into the bright ringside spotlight of the Sharkey-Schmeling fight crowd at the Yankee Stadium last night.

The chief executive of Pa. Pitt's great city was looking his best as he arrived. Indeed, close observers might have taken a quick look from the nattily dressed Walker as Mayor Kline stepped into the picture and Grover Whalen took more than one glance at our Mayor. Whalen was among the early arrivals. He reached the scene while the first bout was in progress.

LOCAL MEN PRESENT

Official Pittsburgh was well represented in the huge throng. James E. Bentley of the County Commissioners' office sat with other prominent Pittsburghers. Joe Armstrong, Jr., was among the early birds to gather at the vast arena.

Mayor Kline was close to the ringside and in his party were Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh, City Controller Dr. J. P. Kerr and Police Inspector Albert Beebe.

Inspector Beebe is a great admirer of Max Schmeling, coach on account of seeing the Teuton in his first bout in this country. Harry Keck, Sports Editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, who has covered all of the championship bouts of the past eight or 10 years, was one of the first of the large army of newspapermen to reach the ringside.

BRISBANE AT RING

Arthur Brisbane, famous editor and writer, reached his ringside seat while the third bout was in progress.

Homer Lane, Eddie Ray, Myles Smith, Harry Grelle, Stoney Jones and Bill Tracey, the latter of Braddock, were among the Pittsburgh district folks who saw and enjoyed the big glove feast.

Manager Jewel Ens led most of his Pirates to the home of the Yankees. The Buccos were feeling right pert inasmuch as they had just floored a club that had visions of a record winning streak for the season. Manager McGraw of the Giants and most of his players also were in the assemblage.

The members of the betting fraternity of Pittsburgh were out in big numbers. And as usual the gambling boys of our town had plenty of money to offer. The bulk of the Pittsburgh cash was ready for Schmeling takers. Slim Silverhart, one of the better known of the Pittsburgh bettors, was reported to have laid twenty five hundred dollars on Sharkey at odds of eight to five.

Draped in Flag, Sharkey Booed By Crowd

NEW YORK, June 13.—Whoever it was that was responsible for Jack Sharkey entering the ring for his bout with Max Schmeling at the Yankee Stadium last night with a large American flag draped over his shoulders pulled one of the prize "boners" of all time.

It looked for a time as if Sharkey, at the beginning of the fight, was turning his back to popularity when he flaunted this display of patriotism to signify that he was an American, and the American standard-bearer.

It soured the crowd and the booing was pronounced as he was announced. Ringside comment over the incident was bitter. The Sharkey cause was an unpopular one after that.

Following the bout, it was said Sharkey wore the flag over his own protests, being induced to do so by his manager, Johnny Buckley, and other handlers.

JACOBS GAINS SEMI-FINALS

BALTIMORE, June 13.—(AP.)—Eddie Jacobs, playing for the University of Pittsburgh, and George Holloway, of Yale, won their way into the semi-finals of the Maryland state tennis tournament on the courts of the Baltimore Country Club, along with Eddie's brother, William.

These three and Stanley Almquist, of the University of Oregon, and John A. Magee still are in the running for the title which for the first time since 1923, stands more than an even chance of remaining in Baltimore. Almquist and Magee are to meet in the last of the quarter-finals to determine the fourth semi-finalist.

fourth. He looked different to me and I knew then I would beat him."

The Boston sailor marched into his dressing room, brushing aside the condolences tossed his way en route by policemen and common citizens. Once in the room, he smacked one hand into the other, glowered about the assembly and said softly:

"I would rather have lost every other fight I ever fought than this one."

He stared blankly around the room, went to his locker, sat down on a bench before it and held his head in his hands. Then a horde of newspapermen swept in on him.

"What have you to say, Jack?" they demanded.

His eyes filling with tears, he shook his head.

"You've got to say something," they insisted.

"Well," he said quietly, "I don't think much of Schmeling's ability as a fighter. I was playing along with him and I was positive I could have knocked him out any time I wanted to. It was just like a game of tag and he was it."

Sharkey then turned to his manager, Johnny Buckley, and mildly asked:

"Couldn't you have done something?"

The perspiring Buckley hoarsely shouted:

"Jack, I done everything I could do. What was there to do?"

Fight Results

At New York—Max Schmeling won on a foul over Jack Sharkey, 4 rounds (for world heavyweight championship). Al Fay defeated George Hoffman, 10 rounds. Henry Lamar defeated Mateo Oca, 8 rounds. Ralph Ciucello knocked out Pete Brand, 3 rounds. Stanley Poreda defeated Paul Bianchi, 8 rounds.

Marine Shooter Ties World Mark

QUANTICO, Va., June 13.—(INS.)—Corp. Carl I. Laine, Marine Corps, of Jackson, Fla., tied the world record for the service rifle when he won the Marine Corps match at the Marine base here Wednesday, it was announced today. He made a score of 294 out of a possible 300.

The record was established at the national rifles matches at Camp Perry, O., in 1927, by Sergt. W. P. Bissenden, infantry, United States Army, and it had not been equaled since until Laine's feat. The course Laine shot calls for 20 shots at 200 yards, 10 at 300, 10 at 600 and 20 at 1,000 yards.

Long's Sport Comment

the Cards are trying to replace Chick Hafey and Ernest Orsatti, the Browns are hunting high and low for a new fly-chaser who carries a left-hand punch.

In fact, this search has been going on all season. Goose Goslin, of the Senators, was the player first sought, and several attempts were made to get him, but when the Washington management remained firm in a demand that St. Louis give up Infielder Ralph Kress and a first-string pitcher in exchange for Goslin, negotiations were called off.

Goose Goslin

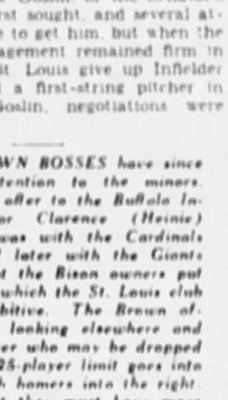
THE BROWN BOSSES have since turned their attention to the minors. They made an offer to the Buffalo Internationals for Clarence (Heinie) Mueller, who was with the Cardinals four times and later with the Giants and Braves, but the Bison owners put a price on him which the St. Louis club says was prohibitive. The Brown officials are now looking elsewhere and are also ready to grab any left-hand hitter who may be dropped by another major league club when the 25-player limit goes into force. They want a man who can punch homers into the right field pavilion in St. Louis, realizing that they must have more hitting power to get anywhere. The Browns, with a club average of only .250, are the weakest hitting outfit in either big league. Since Sammy Hale fell below the line this week Heinie Manush is their only .300 sticker.

THE AMERICAN LEAGUE presents a new pennant contender in the Cleveland club. The Indians, though ranked as a good team, were not considered likely to press the Athletics very hard when the season started, yet they have fought their way up to a position right at the heels of the leaders.

They are so close, in fact, that if they succeed in beating the Mackmen for the third straight time today they will be in first place tonight. The rise of Peckinpaugh's men has been rapid. They have won six games in succession, nine of their last 10, and 13 of their last 16. Yesterday they took second place from the Senators, who have lost nine of their last 12 games.

THE BOSTON BRAVES have had more games postponed on their home grounds than any other club in either league. Yesterday's postponement was the third in four days and the ninth of the season at Braves' Field.

The White Sox are next, with eight home postponements. No other club has had more than six. The Phillies lead in total cancellations, with 16 to the Braves' 14, but 11 of the Quakers' postponements were in road games. The Pirates have had six games postponed at Forbes Field and four abroad.



Brick Owens

CLARENCE (BRICK) OWENS, American League umpire, laid up in a Detroit hospital with a severe knee injury which resulted from being struck by a batted ball during the Tiger-Yankee game on Wednesday, appears to be the victim of an odd jinx. This is the third time he has been carried off the field and removed to a hospital in consequence of being hit by a ball during a game. Twice while umpiring in the National League nearly two decades ago he suffered a broken ankle through being struck by a foul tip. The first of these mishaps occurred on June 14, 1912, at Philadelphia, and the second occurred a year later at Forbes Field. A peculiar coincidence in connection with Owens' misfortune in this city was that his umpiring partner, Jim Johnstone, also was injured in the same way in the same game. First one and then the other had to be assisted from the field after being laid low by foul tips, and it was necessary to press a player from each team into service to handle the umpiring during the remainder of the contest.

FALL RIVER TEAM NAMED SOCCER CHAMPION

RUNNER-UP MEDALS LOST TO LOCALS

By TOM BIRKS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 13.—With two big scheduled meetings yesterday the annual convention of the United States Soccer Football Association got away with a bang. The meeting of the National Commission was important and the resolutions made will be given to the delegates today. In a meeting of the credential committee Sam Parks, of Pittsburgh, was named alternate for the state of Washington.

GALLATIN CENSURED

The big item of news to Pittsburgh soccer fans coming out of the convention was the announcement by John J. MacEwan, of Cleveland, secretary of the National Amateur cup, that the Fall River Raffles had been named National Champions, and that the Gallatin club would not be given the runner-up medals because of its refusal to make the trip for the replay in the final game at Boston. The Pittsburgh club got little sympathy in the lobby gossip and many soccer men wanted to have the club suspended.

Gallatin, however, will have cause for rejoicing in its fight to help Benick, the Gallatin center forward, who is lying in a Detroit hospital with a broken leg. A motion is going to be placed on the floor today asking the United States Football Association to assume a hospital bill of $350 and it may go through.

CUMMINGS MAY GO

Little news was gleaned from the commission meetings. It seems that Wilfred Cummings, of Chicago, will not get another term as treasurer of the governing body. Cummings is the only officer not in session, being with the team going to South America. Inside dope indicates that Bill Angus, of Cleveland, second vice president of the National body, is in a receptive mood for the office.

Outside of the two meetings held by the committee the delegates had little to do but talk soup. A heavy mist lay over the boardwalk and this threw a pall over everything.

The real work started today, two long sessions being scheduled. In the evening, the delegates will be the guests of the Eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey State Football Associations at a banquet.

CAHILL ABOUT THROUGH

Tom Cahill, the stormy petrel of American soccer, who recently resigned the secretaryship is lobbying, but appears to be through in active soccer.

Joe Triner, of Chicago, president of the Midwest Professional Soccer League, announced that he was a candidate for a vice presidency.

Unless Angus gets the job as treasurer, no office will be open unless a move is made to oust Winton Barker, of St. Louis. Tom Edwards, the delegate from Western Pennsylvania, is making many friends, and today will be initiated on the floor of the convention chamber.

park which is a tough combination for all visiting teams.

Fred Lindstrom illuminated this thesis in the two consecutive trips to the plate. The Giants had to have two runs to tie when Fred came up in the sixth. The third sacker worked the string to three and two and then faced Kremer with his right field hitting stance. The result was an ordinary fly into the right field stands. Fred came up again in the eighth and probably having an idea that Kremer would reverse his style he set himself for an inside ball and immediately drove the rocket into the left field stands for another homer.

OTT HITS HOMER

Mel Ott followed Lindstrom in the eighth with a rock into the right field stands for homer No. 14. George Grantham drove a homer into the left field stands in the fifth, but it was left for little Dick Bartell to explode the only honest homer of the afternoon.

Dare Devil Dick faced Fitzsimmons in the first with Pie Traynor on first and two out. Dick blasted a liner between Ott and Allen, the ball rolling to the faraway enclosure of right center. Dick beat the play at the plate and Polo Ground fans were thus treated to the unusual spectacle of an earned homer. Bartell later tripled to the same general territory.

Joe Heving went to the rescue of Pruett while the Pirates were pounding the left hander in the seventh. The recruit finished the contest.

Kremer pitched his best game of the season, despite the seven runs credited the enemy. Remy was hit hard in spots, but he stayed "in there" for the entire distance.

VETS, YOUTHS NEAR TITLE AT NEMACOLIN

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Another day of golf is at hand—and the slate shows four tournaments in progress. Two one-day events are being played. The Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania is winding up a busy week with a medal play handicap event at the Pittsburgh Field Club and the National Linen Supply Golf Association holds its final one-day tourney of the week at the Aroma Country Club having held one earlier at the Wildwood Country Club, the two affairs being a part of the doings of the association's convention here.

The final rounds in all divisions were reached today in the invitation tournament at the Nemacolin Country Club, while a rather informal quiet invitation tournament for men was reported progressing at the Allegheny Country Club.

STARS IN FINALS

The championship flight at Nemacolin is seeing a couple of heated semi-final contests this morning with the winners slated to match strokes in the final this afternoon. John Graham of South Hills, Western Pennsylvania amateur champion, has a stiff opponent in James T. Lappan, Pittsburgh Field Club star, while the friendly enemies, Knox M. Young and Samuel M. Parks, Jr., of Highland, are bringing another controversy to issue. A young man is certain to play an older, more experienced opponent in the final, for Graham and Lappan are both many years older than the other pair of semi-finalists.

Section 1 of the Women's Golf Association team league held a set-to at the Shannopin Country Club.

OAKMONT LEADS

As a result of yesterday's play the Oakmont and Allegheny Country Club teams are all but tied for the Section 1 lead. Oakmont defeated Edgewood, 5 to 2, while Allegheny took over the Field Club, 7 to 2. Oakmont now leads by a single point.

Fox Chapel defeated Stanton Heights, 5 to 3, and Shannopin won by a like score over Chartiers Heights.

TWO RECORDS SET BY DOGS

Setting a new track record for the futurity distance, Gallant Bee, Z. E. Freeman's fawn dog, defeated some of the crack speedsters at the Bridgeville Kennel Club's Speedway last night. Bee worked his way through the pack and, taking the lead at the head of the stretch, finished full of run. Peggy Lawrence made a new futurity hurdle record, negotiating the course in 31 seconds.

The old argument as to whether female greyhound are gamer and faster than the males will be revived tonight in the fourth race at New Kensington. Four of the starters are members of the gentle sex and four are males and a red hot contest is in prospect.

HOMER STORM ENDS

During a storm of home run hitting recently in the Sally League, a pair occurred one day and each of the loop's games ended in a shutout.

The outstanding battle of the Commercial and Industrial League will be flashed this evening at Carrick Park, when the Reick-McJunkin nine, 1929 title holder of the loop, clashes with Reliance Life, present leader, and which must cop this battle to have the first half championship in the well-known bag.

This is the battle that Reicks have been looking forward to, and Manager Bill Stuhlfire feels that the Insurance boys are going to get a setback. However, George Miller seems to be supremely confident that his club will win. Hurley probably will get the important slab assignment, opposing Laboon.

One game will be played in the West Penn League as North Bessemer goes to Homewood to meet the East Enders. President Price, of the Railroad Club, seems to be one that likes to meet Homewood and it is quite possible that Dom Demaria will put up a good game.

CITY LEAGUE BUSY

Three games will be staged in the City Loop. Book Shoe goes to W. O. W. to meet the hard-hitting Jedinak aggregation. J. L. Thomas travels to Pleasant Valley to hook up with Dunsky's champions, while Stowe Civics play at Magee field against the Smiths.

In the Steel City League the Clover Club will entertain the league leader, Demor. Since Observatory Civics came back with that sensational splash, Demor cannot afford to drop a game.

In the City League last evening, the Jimmy Smiths nosed out the North Side Civics, 6 to 5. Verona won over Wilmerding in the West Penn circuit, 12 to 4, and in the Commercial League, Raybestos practically sewed up the first half title by downing Rosenbaums, 8 to 0.

ACES VICTORS

St. Phillips won over the Presbyterians, 9 to 1, in the Grafton-Ingram Church League and in the Greater Pittsburgh loop, the Homestead Aces defeated the Jenkins club, 9 to 4. Ingomar defeated Fineview, 9 to 3, and the North Siders won over Immaculate Heart, 5 to 4 in the North Side Twilight League.

Fintex defeated the Beckmans, 7 to 5 in the Central League, as the Lincoln Civics won from the Soho Traders, 7 to 4.

Book Shoe downed Dormont in an independent tussle, 5 to 1, and Homewood lost to J. L. Thomas, 5 to 3.

COMPARES FIGHTS

Peter [illegible] president of the German Boxing Commission today compared the progress of the fight between Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey up to the point of the foul blow with the Schmeling-Paolino fight.

"It is quite possible that things would have looked quite different to the middle or end of the fight," Lh said.

"Schmeling was not in full fighting power having been seriously ill before he went to America and not having had enough time to acclimate himself and prepare quietly.

"I can imagine that the Schmeling of future fights will be quite different from the Schmeling of June 12."

DRIVE STARTED TO MODERNIZE OLD HOMES

American Radiator Offers Equipment on Partial Payments to Owners

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, June 13.—The nation's business at the moment is suffering from an exaggerated disposition to read charts and wonder what is coming.

What is needed during this transitional period is more decisive leadership and courage.

Clarence M. Woolley, head of the American Radiator and Standard Sanitary Company, has set out on a high adventure to make conditions in the business world. With residential building, on which his company primarily depends for orders, drastically down, Mr. Woolley's company has made a virtue out of necessity, and started a nation-wide energetic campaign to induce the owners of 16,000,000 homes with obsolete or inadequate heating equipment to modernize their heating appliances.

RESULTS GRATIFYING

Mr. J. Beirn, vice president and general sales manager of the company, who is in charge of the campaign, which started last month, informed me that the results thus far have been highly gratifying. He said that sales of the company to this vast new market, which consists of modernizing homes, would by themselves constitute a satisfactory volume for the year. He also said that the lessening of the rate of decline in new residential construction last month was a hopeful sign, and indicated that the company's experience in the last 10 days showed in various parts of the country a reviving demand to rent business properties.

Mr. Beirn said that the new heating apparatus would be sold on the partial payment plan, with which his company already had excellent experience. Mr. Beirn added that the American Radiator Company had found through the years that the home owner type were good moral risks. In order to encourage installation, the company only requires a 10 per cent down payment and suspends payments during the summer months.

Mr. Beirn said that, though the new campaign was intended to stimulate sales, it was also designed to help the general economic situation, in accordance with President Hoover's business stabilization program in which Mr. Woolley has played a leading part. In times of building boom, the radiator makers never were able to concentrate on selling the vast market of owners of old homes because installers were tied up on new jobs. With slackness in new building, there are labor facilities for doing the modernization job on a large scale. As part of the program, the company has revolutionized its sales methods, with the idea of transforming salesmen from order takers to counsellors on scientific heating.

REDOUBLES EFFORTS

In tying up the new campaign of the American Radiator Company, which has redoubled its advertising and sales effort, Mr. Beirn explained:

"To put it briefly, our experience has been a case where necessity is the mother of invention. New residential and other building construction declined almost to the zero point. Our company could sit back and wait and pray for better times, but that would have entailed the closing down of several factories, the general cutting down of sales expense, and a generous contribution to the ranks of the unemployed. And that is exactly what Mr. Hoover wanted to prevent. It is what had to be prevented all along the line if America were to avoid one of the worst panics and social catastrophes of its history.

"The answer was obvious. If new building construction had practically ceased, we must perforce turn to the old home market to sell our wares, keep the wheels of production in motion, our organization intact; and help thousands of heating dealers and plumbers and jobbers in the country to keep their business going."

HELP BUSINESS

I take my hat off to Mr. Woolley and his associates, who are among those who are enterprising enough to do something to help business. Other companies in the building field, such as Johns-Manville, have also been proceeding along experimental lines in encouraging owners of old homes to modernize through the purchase of new roofing on the partial payment plan. The recently announced 10 per cent price cut by the American Radiator was designed to meet a competitive situation and to facilitate closings of pending negotiations among their salesmen and home owners.

Instead of wallowing in pessimism, generated by bearish adventurers in Wall Street, constructive business men should get this slogan around:

"Business is slow. Therefore this is a good time to get repairs and other work done cheaply."

These recurrent spasms of fright in Wall Street create opportunities for the cash buyer of good stocks to make advantageous long term commitments.

Interesting Window Displays

Here comes another of May-Stern's Greatest National Events—"KROEHLER WEEK". A sale of great magnitude made possible by the collaboration of Two Giants of the Furniture Industry . . . "KROEHLER" and MAY-STERN'S.

Kroehler, as you well know, is the biggest manufacturer of upholstered furniture—and May-Stern's are recognized throughout the nation as America's Foremost Home Furnishers. It is only natural that when these two put their utmost behind a sale that it can only result in one thing—The Greatest Value-Giving Event You've ever had the opportunity in which to participate!

Two Pieces All-Over Mohair

The sheen and beauty of the Angora Mohair which covers it all-over has a distinct appeal to the home-lover who appreciates quality furnishings in her home. Of course the famous Kroehler construction is used in both pieces. The reverse sides of the cushions offer a pleasing contrast in Jacquard velour. Note the effectiveness of the diamond shaped button tuft backs.

Revealing the "Hidden Qualities" Of Kroehler Construction!

When you buy "KROEHLER-MADE" living room furniture you are buying FINE furniture. The reason is that in the great Kroehler factories—the largest of their kind in the world—the art of producing furniture OF BEAUTY AND STYLE—OF FINEST MATERIALS—OF BEST WORKMANSHIP is most rapidly adhered to and on a mammoth scale.

Here are some of the famous "Hidden Qualities": Frames are of select hardwood, kiln dried to remove the moisture and prevent warping. Corners are blocked, glued and doweled (not soft wood merely nailed together and easily pulled apart). Patented Kroehler steel spring under-construction instead of the inexpensive and old method of webbing. Separately encased oil tempered inner springs in the cushions assuring luxurious and billowy seats. Truly FINE furniture of accepted QUALITY.

Yet the Kroehler Way of Making This Upholstered Furniture Enables Them to Sell It Cheaper Than Inferior Makes.

Smart Kroehler Davenport Suite

$159

For years women have enthused over the economy and comfort of bed davenports of which Kroehler was the pioneer manufacturer. Really two rooms in one—in an instant the davenport is made into a comfortable full size bed. All three pieces are in an attractive Jacquard velour.

FOES AID DRYS, SAYS M'BRIDE

GROVE CITY, Pa., June 13.—(AP.)—F. Scott McBride, general superintendent, today reviewed the Senate lobby committee's investigation of the Anti-Saloon League in an address and said all charges made against the organization by the anti-drys had been disproved. He declared:

"Figuratively speaking, the wets have turned the Anti-Saloon League inside out, but have found the league methods proper, economical, consistent, effective and in every way defensible. It was shown that the common, every-day charges of the wets against the league are wet propaganda put forth to undo, if possible, the organization standing in the way of their liquor program."

The association against the prohibition amendment, Representative Tinkham (Rep.), Massachusetts, and other anti-drys, he said, helped Senator Blaine (Rep.), Wisconsin, a member of the committee "gathering any information they thought could be used to discredit the league and its leadership," adding:

"The wets accepted statements from irresponsible sources. They had the aid of Congressman LaGuardia (Rep.), New York, and other wet leaders in this attempt to discredit the league."

LIQUOR SEIZED IN CANDY STORE

Three persons were under bond today following two raids by prohibition agents yesterday.

In a confectionery store at 2951 Penn avenue, where, L. G. Gable, 37, and Frank Krantz, 45, were arrested, a large quantity of moonshine was seized, agents said. Gable and Krantz were released on bond.

Frank Kilyk, 40, of 46 Noblestown road, East Carnegie, was arrested when a 35-gallon still and 11 barrels of mash were found in the cellar of his home, according to the agents.

A large alcohol plant was uncovered by prohibition agents and constables in a raid on a house in the rear of 1813 West Twenty-sixth street, Erie, it was reported last night. The seizure included four stills of a 1,850 gallon daily capacity, 7,500 gallons of mash and 560 gallons of alcohol. Tony Bell, of Erie, was being held in jail in that city pending a hearing.

Affelder Estate Valued at $50,000

He directs that 10 per cent of the sum be administered by his wife for charity and that the remainder be left to her. At her death, the estate is to be administered by his executors and trustees for the benefit of his children.

Mr. Affelder named as executors his widow and Walter A., Herbert L. and Edwin C. May.

BUSINESS GOOD IN 4 STATES

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., June 13.—(AP.)—A general business condition analysis of "fair to good" was reported for Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio, Northern West Virginia and the so-called Panhandle of Maryland at the meeting of the Allegheny Regional Advisory Board here.

The banking committee made the report based upon bank clearings, deposits and savings and liquidations as of May 15, compared with figures for the corresponding date last year.

As the result of replies to questionnaires from a majority of the carload shippers of the territory, the forecast was made that 1,049,006 freight cars would be needed during July, August and September to move commodities of the area. The figure represents a decrease of 3.1 per cent from that of the 1,082,261 required during the third quarter of 1929.

Freight locomotive and car conditions were reported good by operating, transportation and traffic department representatives of the railroads. A total of 4,779 new freight cars was reported as in operation with 4,8s2 installed in the past three months.

Tiger, Loose in Car, Captured by Police

TOKIO, June 13.—(AP.)—Police observed Friday, the 13th, by welcoming a 750-pound Korean tiger from Seul, which had broken out of his cage more than 200 miles from Tokio. He arrived restrained only by the flimsy walls of his boxcar.

Scores of armed police and hunters, summoned by a conference of police officials, formed a reception committee. Then came the anti-climax: The tiger was transferred without difficulty into a cage.

Man Gets Limit, 20 Years, for Ham Theft

ATLANTA, June 13.—(AP.)—The theft of a ham cost Oscar Jossie, a Negro, 20 years on the chain gang.

That sentence was imposed on him by Judge John Hutcheson in DeKalb County Superior Court when the Negro pleaded guilty to stealing the ham. It was the maximum term for a second offense.

Must Patrol River For Girl He Says Drowned

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 13.—(AP.)—For five days and five nights Clarence Crookshank, 24, must keep vigil along the Kanawha river, searching for the body of a girl he told police was drowned while on a midnight canoe ride with him. Police released him from the city jail a second time upon that condition.

Officers said Crookshank, who early Monday reported to them a young woman he did not know had drowned when his canoe overturned, had not deviated from his story at any time. He was arrested, freed, rearrested and finally given his freedom again upon condition that he patrol the river for the next five days.

ARREST THREE FOR MURDER

INDIANAPOLIS, June 13.—(AP.)—The slaying two months ago near Scottsburg, Ind., of E. D. Pierson, 54, Negro, Chicago, auditor of the National Baptist Convention, killed, police said, because he "knew too much" about the juggling of a $62,000 fund in the Nashville, Tenn., office of the Negro organization, was believed solved today.

Under arrest here were the Rev. B. J. F. Westbrook, pastor of the largest Negro church in Indianapolis, and George Washington, 41, described by police as a hired Negro gunman. At Nashville, police arrested A. M. Townsend, reputedly one of the wealthiest Negroes in the country, secretary of the Baptist Sunday School Publishing Board and auditor of a Negro bank in Nashville. He was released on $10,000 bond.

TOLEDO, O., June 13.—(AP)—Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican senatorial candidate from Illinois, in a speech here before the Woman's Republican Club of Toledo, urged adoption of a constitutional amendment or any other method which would eliminate necessity for large campaign expenditures by senatorial candidates at primary elections.

Mrs. McCormick said that under present conditions senatorial candidates "must battle against all the influence of the sitting member and the power of his patronage."

Mrs. McCormick blamed "the lethargy of the public as the voters stay away from the polls at primarmry election and a candidate, if he hopes to get out enough votes to win, must spend large sums of money."

Hollywood Piqued 'Cause Broadway Actress Gets Fat Parts

By HARRISON CARROLL

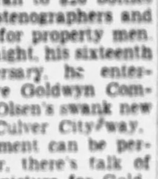
(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 13.

STAGE NEWCOMERS no longer excite much curiosity out here, but Hollywood is piqued over the announcement that Louise Huntington, a 19-year-old Broadway actress, will be given the lead in four important Fox pictures.

Miss Huntington's stage career included appearances in "The Constant Nymph" and "The Marriage Bed." More recently, she has been on vaudeville tour with Kenneth Harlan, the film actor.

It appears that the usual procedure of small tryout roles in the talkies will be eliminated in the case of this young performer. Fox comes out unequivocally with the statement that she is to have the feminine lead in "Her Kind of Man," an original by Sonya Levien, featuring J. Harold Murray; "Luxury," an adaptation of Edward Knoblock's play, "My Lady's Dress;" "The Man Who Came Back," a new talkie version of the old melodrama, with Charles Farrell in the masculine lead; and "Scotland Yard," with Edmund Lowe.



Louise Huntington

The last two pictures are with two of Fox's best known leading men, and are an indication of what the studio intends to do for its latest Broadway importation.

By the way, Miss Huntington is from Texas, which has given the screen so many of its feminine stars.

MAKING IT CLEAR

Eddie Cantor was explaining the mysteries of diet to one of his young daughters who was visiting on the "Whoopee" set.

Eddie Cantor

"You've got to eat lettuce because of vitamins," he instructed. "You know about vitamins—Warner Brothers have been making them for years."

Speaking of Cantor, he's turned Santa Claus to all of the employes of Samuel Goldwyn, producer of "Whoopee." Eddie's largess ran to 850 bottles of perfume for stenographers and suits of clothes for property men. On Wednesday night, his sixteenth wedding anniversary, he entertained the entire Goldwyn Company at George Olsen's swank new night-club out Culver City way.

If this department can be permitted to rumor, there's talk of another Cantor picture for Goldwyn.

GOODBY MUSICIANS

The swan song of the talkie musicals is hinted in First National's dissolution of its stock dancing chorus. At the height of the operetta craze, a regular group of dancing boys and girls were put under contract. Recently, however, they have been playing extra parts in straight dramas. As their six-month contracts run out, they are being released from the pay-roll.

Another sign of the changing mode is the ruling at this studio that the word "operetta" be deleted from all advertising of pictures.

This doesn't mean that spectacle will be abandoned. To the contrary, the opening scenes of "Kismet" will be taken on a Bagdad street a quarter of a mile in length. More than 4,500 extras will be used in this sequence. Hollywood hasn't seen a set of this magnitude since Doug Fairbanks and D. W. Griffith used to delight in assailing the eye with colorful multitudes. Perhaps I should except a few of the war pictures where thousands of soldiers have been employed.

"Kismet" boasts a large cast of part-players, too. There will be 25 important names, in addition to Otis Skinner.

HOLLYWOOD AT A GLANCE

Gloria Swanson's new picture, "What a Widow," is still in the cutting room. She hasn't any new vehicles as yet, although Josephine Lovett is working on an idea. There's always "Queen Kelly" in the offing, too. Arthur Byron, who was put under six months contract when it was decided to finish this picture, still remains on call. He hasn't done a lick of work for Gloria, and his agreement is up next month . . . Those close to Mary Pickford scoff at the idea of her picture being resumed for at least a month. The sets are struck, and the cast dismissed. Kenneth McKenna is likely to be the only one retained of the original supporting company . . . On Sunday, Hollywood gets its first glimpse of Sergei M. Eisenstein, the much discussed Russian director, who created the fascinating and rugged "Potemkin" and "Ten Days That Shook the World." Eisenstein comes to work for Paramount. Jesse Lasky having snatched him from Douglas Fairbanks just as he did Maurice Chevalier from rival bidders . . . Paramount reveals the startling figures that Rex Beach's novel, "The Spoilers" has sold 1,600,000 copies since it first was published in 1905 . . . You know of course, that Edwin Carewe is making a talkie version with Gary Cooper in the lead . . . Al Jolson slipped out of Hollywood Tuesday night to attend the fights in New York. He'll return to make "Sons of Guns" for United Artists . . . Clara Bow is planning to spend a vacation in Texas, object unknown . . . Jeanette MacDonald has rented herself a house and swimming pool on Vine street. This defies the Beverly Hills migration . . . Palm Springs is housing the Victor McLaglen troupe, which is making "Dust and Sun." And, believe me, there is plenty of sun there right now.

King Carol Talks In Metrotone News Reel

The world-wide service of Hearst Metrotone News brings to the screen in its current issue King Carol, II, of Rumania, who is seen and heard in the first talking picture ever made of him. In the course of his remarks, Carol says:

"I and my countrymen are linked with you perhaps more closely than with many other nations. Hundreds of thousands of our citizens have gone to the United States during the past 50 years and many of them have returned to us bringing new ideas of agriculture and commercial developments which have materially aided our national prosperity.

"Some time within the near future, I hope that it will be possible for me to visit again your great country and not only to meet many friends, but also to thank you personally for the everlasting friendship which the United States has always shown towards my country, Rumania; friendship which is so necessary for maintaining throughout the world a complete and equitable feeling of everlasting peace."

There are also pictures of Crown Prince Michael, once the "Boy King," who lost his throne when his father returned from exile.

Nichols Orchestra Coming to Villa

Red Nichols and his orchestra will open an engagement next Monday in Eddie Klein's Villa, Babcock boulevard. They will succeed Zez Confrey and his band. The new flood attraction, headed by Sammy Walsh, dancing master of ceremonies, will include the Reynolds sisters, song and dance team; Bernice Jarnot, dancer, and Faye Cantrell, singer.

FROM WHEAT FIELDS COMES OUR HERO IN STANLEY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"The Devil's Holiday" opened yesterday on the Stanley screen. We guess it can be classified as a romantic melodrama.

Out of the wheat fields of the West comes David, youngest son of a millionaire farmer, for his first look at that big town, New York. There, a fluttering gold-digger scoops up the romantic stuff to him in steam-shovel doses and he takes an awful tumble for her. Somehow, word of it all gets back to the wheat belt and to Younger Brother's rescue hastens Elder Brother Mark. But Mark isn't a diplomat. As soon as he see the girl, he begins insinuating things. Which makes her awful mad. So, to spite Brother Mark, she marries Brother David.

Now to the millionaire wheat farm go the newlyweds to see what father thinks about it. And father thinks plenty! He ends up by buying the girl off with a $50,000 check. Then, out she flies, presumably to Paris, while Brothers Mark and David get into a fight that has David being hurled down a flight of steps and landing on his head.

REAL LOVE AWAKES

But, don't weep. David doesn't die. He is just left a bit "daffy." That gay wife of his is continually on his mind. Naturally, nothing remains—if the happy ending is to be attained—except that the girl awakes to real love for this boy of the wheat fields. Which is just what happens—and back to him she goes, very penitent and tearful.

The film gets its title from the fact that someone says Sunday is considered a holiday in the city and the retort comes back that it is "a devil's holiday." Which makes a good box office name.

The production creates and sustains an amount of interest. It shows some keen direction. Its cast is okay. Nancy Carroll does the gold-digging act. She gets emotional and hysterical. Yet, close analysis finds her dramatics rather shallow. And we say that if she is another Ruth Chatterton, like some have heralded, then we are another Will Shakespeare. And that is no laugh!

THE FARMER BOY

Phillips Holmes, as the farmer boy, arouses interest because he has a shock of hair that resembles the wheat fields of which he is a part. Hobart Bosworth is there as a father who has a fervent love for his God and his sons. And Ned Sparks mustn't be omitted. As a fellow who sells thrashing machines, he's the next best thing in the film. The best, at least the most impressive, is the brief glimpse of the wheat fields as the wind comes hurrying through them.

Pat Rooney and his son, Pat, the third, mix old dance with the new in the stage feature, "Campus Daze." And it is a "daze," in spots, this revue. Dick Powell is present both with the stage presentation and with the Bernie Armstrong organlogue, and he sings himself into some warm applause.

GIRL UNAFRAID

Ardeth Remains in Lonely Cabin to Nurse Ken

CHAPTER LVI.

The road led through aisles of redwoods, through groves of oak and aspen. Rattling over wooden bridges which spanned mountain brooks brimming with spring rains. Through tiny hamlets, little more than a handful of houses clustered about a general merchandise store.

Ardeth thought of the first time she had come up this road on the long ago snow party. She felt wonder and a stirring of faint pity for the romantic untried girl she had been then. She had loved Ken then as a girl worships a story book hero. Not with the brooding fiercely protective love she now knew.

In that long ago time Ken had been the gay and aggressive one. Now she was bringing him up here, weary and beaten. Bringing him up here to the healing quiet of the mountain. What did the gossip of the world she was leaving matter now? she thought grimly. The world had parted them long enough. The path ahead was suddenly clear, no matter where it led.

Ken had fallen into an exhausted sleep which the jolting of the mountain road for the most part failed to break. Now and then his eyes would unclose and look anxiously for Ardeth.

Her low word, her touch, brought the shadow of a smile to his lips. He slept again, content to know her hand was in his own.

Bitter Thoughts

Tom's thoughts were bitter on that long silent drive. Not until it died had he realized the strength of that secret hope in his heart.

All over now. No longer any use to dream of the day Ardeth would change her mind and turn to the steady faithful love he could give her.

Ardeth was going with Ken. Well, he should have known it would turn out that way. He's had plenty of warning. It always had been Ken with Ardeth. She was the sort of girl who would give her heart away once.

No more dinners. No more little Sunday trips.

And this was love. But God, how ironic that he should be the one who was sitting here driving her out of his own life.

Up and up, through groves of silver pines, where the late sunlight flung long bars of deep gold across the brown road. Past mountain rivers, like an outcropping of green jade where black hawks hung on poised wings. Up to the little cabin waiting in the singing stillness of the mountains.

Shadows were long and the swift chill of mountain night had descended when they reached the cabin. Ken looked about with a puzzled frown when they helped him into the house. The long sleep had somewhat collected his thoughts. He protested weakly.

Ken Protests

"Ardeth. We can't do this. You mustn't—"

She was gently firm. "Don't think, dear. I'll do the thinking."

Sick as he was, her stronger will swayed him. He sank back into the placid unconcern which covered him like a warm and restful cloak. After all, here was Ardeth, saying she would not leave him. Good simply to let things slide after struggling against them so long. Good to be up here away from the thoughts of Cecile—of the stock market—a man could rest up here.

He made no protest when Tom took him in hand and put him to bed in the adjoining bedroom whose board walls still smelled of the pine forest.

Ardeth kindled a fire in the living room. Her thoughts went back to the time she had been here with Mary and Phyllis Hawkins and the Durant girl. How they would talk those women she had known through the shop.

She shrugged. What did it matter? Ken was here! Fierce protective joy swelling in her heart. "The dice were flung." Ken needed her what else could count?

Thinks of Tom

She went around the house in a strangely cool frame of mind, planning for the life of the next few months. Fortunately the necessities of living were on hand. Plenty of warm blankets and clean linen piled on the pine-board shelves of the closet. Sufficient dishes stacked in the kitchen where a square wood-burning stove and a never failing supply of fuel attended to their cooking needs.

She could get the necessary supplies at the small store down the road. Tomorrow she would make arrangements to buy butter and eggs from one of the ranches. Eggs and milk and fresh fruit. Ken would need little else for a while. Sunshine and quiet and a mind at rest, the doctor had said.

When Tom went down to the store for the list she had made out, she went into the bedroom. Ken had fallen into troubled sleep. For a moment the girl stood looking down at the brown head and thin face, and a fierce little prayer began in her heart.

"God, let me keep him. God, I'll take care of him. don't let them take him away."

Tom hesitated unhappily in the doorway of the living room when it was time for him to leave.

"If it wasn't for that directors' meeting tomorrow, I wouldn't leave you like this, Ardeth."

"There's nothing else you can do, Tom," she said softly. Her gaze came up, a little wearily, to rest on his face, and for the first time the thought of Tom pierced through her concern for Ken. She realized that Tom was suffering. Her eyes softened, grew a little sad.

"Tom, dear old Tom."

His hand covered her own where it had gone to his arm. "Well, I guess it just wasn't meant to be, Ardeth. And you've always been square. You didn't want me to believe it, but—well, I'm the original boob, I guess. I hate to leave you here, though. The world isn't kind, Ard, and it won't look at this in the way you do it. It will make you suffer."

There was a small disillusioned smile on her lips. "I'm not afraid, Tom. I've suffered before. Nothing the world can do will hurt me worse than that."

She spoke of the store then, spoke with a curious indifference. The little shop which for so long had been the dearest thing in life was suddenly a thing outgrown and therefore of little value. Sell the stock. Close it out. When the current bills were paid there would be sufficient sum left to support her for a time. After that—time would tell.

Tom was gone, the headlights of his car dying out along the road. Black night closed down about the cabin, the sharp spring night of the high places.

Ardeth sat before the dying fire in the living room, listening to the whisper of the pine trees outside, and to Ken's deep weary breathing in the bedroom.

It seemed a strange dream.

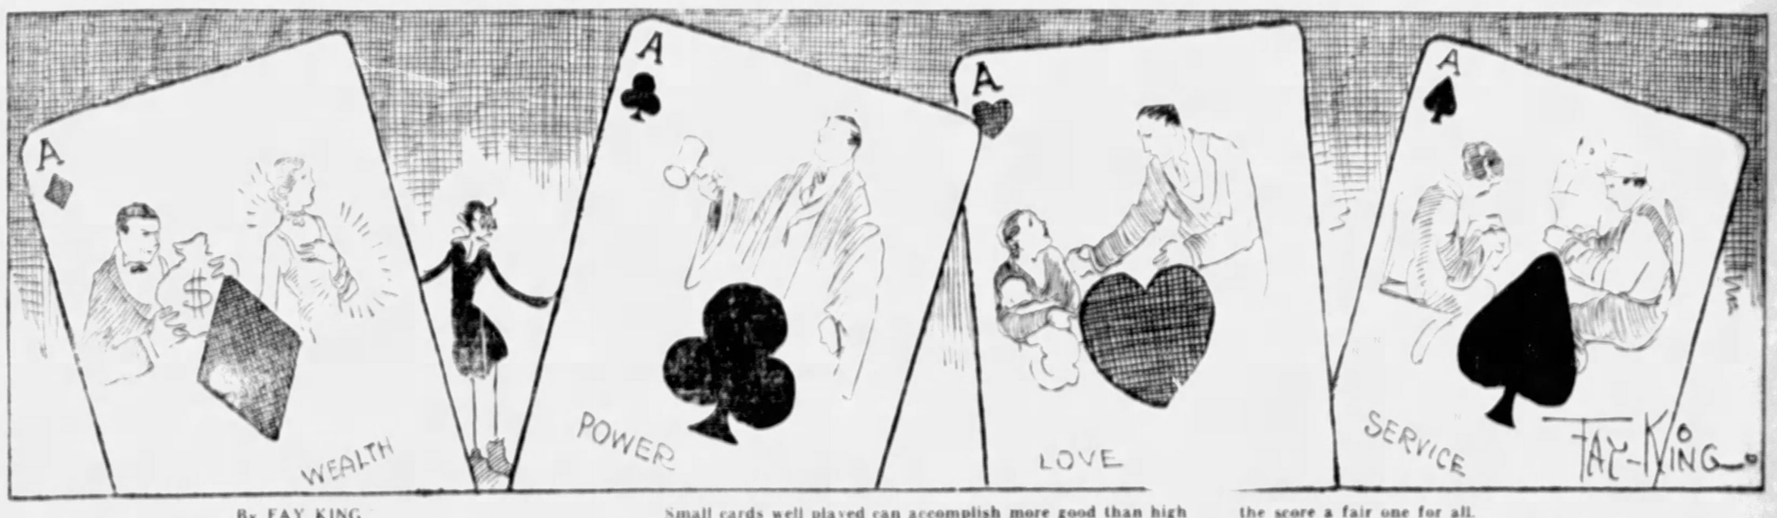
Life's Small Cards, Well Played, Can Win Much, Is Fay King's Opinion



By FAY KING

Life is like a card game.

There are only four suits. Love, Service, Power, Wealth.

In a greater or lesser degree these are played in every walk of life and how well depends more upon the player than the cards.

Small cards well played can accomplish more good than high cards played carelessly.

It is hard to beat a good hand well played.

When power is tempered with justice, service with love, and wealth with kindness and humanity, the game is well played and the score a fair one for all.

The card sharp in life who, through trickery and cheating, hold temporarily a higher hand than would be honestly theirs, usually lose out before the game is ended.

Cards played fairly make worthy scores.

Due to Harrison Boys, a "Quiet" Evening Is Anticipated

As the rap of the cane sounded from the floor above Dicky glanced at me with a look in which consternation was mingled with relief. We knew very well what the rap portended. It was a signal from Mother Graham summoning one of us to [illegible] account for some annoyance to her dignity or her caprice.

It was easy of course to guess the reason for her present displeasure. From the loud speaker of the radio was proceeding the blare of the jazziest of dance tunes with a volume that could have been heard at the Ticer farmhouse down the road. That none of the boys had heard the rapping was evident. Henry was hanging over the radio dials lovingly while William, the older boy, had sprung up and patently forgetting his first restraint at meeting us was going through an elaborate dance step by himself. As for Junior and Roderick, ever since dinner they had been established in a far corner of the living room manipulating several mechanical toys which had survived from birthday and preceding holiday celebrations. Near them my father sat under a reading lamp, eyeglasses on nose, evening paper in hand.

Either my father was disturbed by the jazz or was determined to ignore it or the rapping of Mother Graham upon the floor above. Katherine was upstairs attending to Noel. Mary had escaped to her own room after dinner, so Dicky and I knew that one of us must answer that summons.

"I guess we're holding the bag, old dear," Dicky muttered as he walked over to me and bent down so that I could hear him above the noise. "Will you go, or shall I?"

"I'll go, if you like," I told him. "I suppose it's about the noise. What shall I tell her? Do you mean to stop it before I go up?"

Indeed I do not. Dickey set his lips obstinately. "It's perfectly hideous, of course, but it's the kid's first night here, and he's having a perfectly corking time with it—both of them are. Of course, if she says it bothers her, I'll have to stop it, but I'm not going to do it until she sends down the order. Maybe you can fix up some sort of compromise with her—you're generally pretty lucky at handling her. And don't think I fail to appreciate this, old girl. You're one bully scout—sweetheart."

The last word was a whisper, punctuated by a surreptitious squeeze of my hand. Womanlike it fully repaid me for my assent to Dicky's plea for my aid in dealings with his mother.

I hurried out of the room, waiting only to give Dicky's hand an ecstatic grip. I knew what his mother's impatience would be at any real or apparent disregard of her summons and I was not surprised to meet her at the head of the stairs, majestically preparing to descend.

"Did you hear me knock?" she demanded.

"Oh yes, mother," I answered innocently. "What is it you wish?"

"Are you as idiotic as that question indicates, or are you, by any chance making fun of me?" she demanded.

"I certainly am not making fun of you, Mother."

She gave me a piercing glance. "Fiddlesticks!" she said. "Go down and tell them to shut off that radio at once. Or, no, you're too chicken-hearted. I'll go myself."

She swept past me down the stairs, and I followed, suppressing a wild desire to laugh aloud. But all impulse to mirth left me as an angry howl, Junior's, rose from the living room, echoed by another from Roderick. Then followed the sound of a resounding slap and the rush of feet across the floor.

Colors—And the Man

Women are enjoying a grand and glorious color-jag!

Every beach looks like an artist's palette. And the once austere and uncompromising American home has ceased to resemble an operating room and is beginning to vie with the Aurora Borealis.

Women have always been affected by colors. A rose-colored boudoir can make even the plainest woman feel camplish and frivolous. And an orchid one can inspire her with positively purple thoughts. While a marigold kitchenette can turn even the deadly monotony of cooking into a thing of sweetness and light.

But how does all this chromatic craze affect a MAN? How does he react to this hysteria in the bath-room, and this positive RIOT of color all over the house? Do pink soap, variegated bath salts and a flowered shower curtain stimulate him to wilder ablutions and inspire him to sweeter song during his matutinal plunges? Or do they make him nervous and cause his razor hand to slip?

* * *

How does he feel when he wakes up in the morning and finds his head reposing on a rose-pink pillow-slip or his hands crossed on a baby-blue sheet? Does he feel like an innocent infant in a bassinette?

Does an apple-green breakfast room have a restful and soothing effect on his alarm-clock nerves and his hangover grouch? And does a Chinese red dining room wake him up and inspire him to brilliant repartee after dinner? Or do they merely remind him of his acidosis and excite his toxic-poisoning temper?

* * *

And when the wife hands him something in a green or amber tumbler, and bids him drink, does it fill him with hope—or only with dark suspicion.

For how can HE know whether the strange and mysterious looking draught is chartreuse, creme de menthe, plain aqua pura or just plain arsenic? They're all ONE, in a colored glass! And no man can ever be quite free from the suspicion that his wife is trying to "slip him something" in a goblet, anyway, these days.

I'll tell you how all this new color-madness affects a man! He LOVES it! He eats it up! He revels in it! It is hyacinths to his soul!

A woman may consciously love some colors. But a man has a secret passion for ALL bright, warm, glowing colors. Red is his favorite—because it is the brightest color of them all. As a small boy he loves a red ball, a red sled or a red balloon. Later, he yearns for a red necktie—and, still later, he loves a red-headed woman.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

'Epistaxis' Is Rarely Serious

"Epistaxis" is another name for nose-bleed. Nature shows her great curative powers in every child who has nose-bleed. She merely opens a safety valve to prevent mischief.

The fluid which is lost is almost instantaneously replaced by the body which draws water from the tissues. Thus it is that persons who have suffered greatly from nosebleed have severe thirst. The water must be replaced in the tissues without delay.

Some persons are particularly susceptible to nose-bleed. In some families there seems to be hereditary tendency to recurrent attacks. It might come on at any time of day or night. They may be awakened from sleep with a bad bleeding from the nose. It is however, never a serious condition.

Nasal catarrh is a very common cause of nose bleed. Anaemic children and growing children are especially susceptible to it.

Epistaxis is sometimes mistaken for a hemorrhage from the lungs or stomach when the bleeding occurs in the sleep and some of the blood is swallowed. In such a case it is quite natural that the blood should be vomited the next morning. The experience is apt to cause some alarm, especially if the patient is nervous or easily frightened.

Usually the bleeding stops of its own accord. If it should persist there are simple methods which are nearly always successful. One is the application of cold water or ice to the nose and back of the neck. If this does not check it try snuffing up the nose a very small amount of pulverized alum or tannic acid.

Rest is essential. Have the patient lie down or recline in an easy chair with the head thrown back.

In rare cases it is necessary to have the nose plugged in order to stop the bleeding. Your doctor should be consulted in the matter.

When there is an ulcer in the nose it may be necessary to have the ulcerated spot touched with a caustic, but your doctor should do this. Whenever there is recurrent nose-bleeding a doctor should be consulted. He may save you much annoyance and suffering.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

An Opportunity to Evince An Understanding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am engaged to be married to a young man whose people live about 400 miles from here. I have never met any of his family, but he expects to take me to their home after we are married. Here is what is puzzling me: Last Christmas I sent his mother a Christmas gift and Easter I sent her a card. That is all I have had to do with her. Now my fiance wants me to write her a letter, but I think it is up to her to do that. Which would be the correct thing—should I write her a nice, friendly letter, or should I wait for her to do that? My fiance insists that I write to her, as his mother is very frail and ailing and likes to receive letters.

READER.

Although, strictly speaking, your fiance's mother should write you a letter telling you of her happiness in the engagement and of her enthusiastic welcoming of you into the family, under the circumstances, you should by all means, at once write to this mother who longs for letters, and especially, naturally, from the girl who is to marry her son.

Do not in this case, stand on ceremony. It is ridiculous to do this, and your fiance should not have to urge you to make this human gesture. Always good manners are kind, and kindness takes precedence here to any form.

The Wedding Breakfast

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. What should a bride and bridesmaid do with their bouquets while eating?

2. If all present are seated at one long table, at what part of the table should the bride and groom sit, and who should sit next to them?

3. Should I use place cards?

BUBBLING BILLIE.

1. They may leave them anywhere convenient in the room. Or they may, if the center of the table is not crowded, place the bouquets there, as a kind of supplementary centerpiece.

2. The bride and groom sit together at the head of the table, the bride on the right of the groom. On the bride's right is the best man, and on the groom's left is the bride's chief attendant, either a maid of honor or the matron of honor.

3. This is usually convenient, especially if there are more than eight guests at the table.

The Wedding Gift Problem

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have received an invitation to the marriage of a business associate's daughter and would like to know if I should send a gift. I am perfectly willing to do this, but do not want to if it would be a breach of etiquette.

L.

The fact that receiving an invitation to a wedding gives us the prerogative of sending a wedding gift, it would be quite correct for you to send a gift if you wish to. However, it is not always necessary to send a gift under these circumstances, and you will have to decide what you wish to do. If you do send a gift, it will probably be in better taste if you send something not very personal, something for the home, but something that might be sent by a mere casual acquaintance. Such as, for instance, a handsomely bound book, or a pair of Italian leather book-ends.

And not only should you write her now, but you should make a point of writing her often, of sending her flowers and fruits and books or magazines, or both. Let her see that the girl her son is going to marry has a heart in the right place. What a superb chance you have for kindness and sweet understanding.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, June 14

A very lively state of affairs is presaged from the lunar aspects with ruling planets. This in both business, literary, artistic and social activities, all of which should be pushed under this benignant rulership. But a figure read as inciting the mind to sarcastic views and caustic speech warns of disturbing the fortuitous course of events by offenses in this direction.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of great business and social liveliness, with matters moving in high tempo in both directions. Literary and cultural interests should thrive, but the smooth course of events should not be marred by sarcastic or caustic speech.

A child born on this day should be brilliant and versatile mentally and socially and should find position, pleasure and progress in many directions, as it should be intellectual, artistic and cultured.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Hangnails must be snipped away carefully. They invite infection. If pus forms keep the finger in a warm solution of boric acid, or apply gauze which has been dipped in hot water. If there is much inflammation, seek a physician.

The daily bath has a vitalizing and rejuvenating effect upon the complexion. The skin is an eliminating system. cleanliness and friction help it to perform its work properly. By keeping the entire skin surface free of salty deposits thrown off by the pores the complexion has less work to do, thus retaining its youthful appearance a longer time.

As long as a woman carries her body splendidly, and can step along briskly, she is young. When the old arm chair attracts and there is no desire to get out into the open, tell-tale evidences of age are gathering. No middle-aged woman can afford to go slack. Exercises mean more to her than she imagines. They not only set up the body, but they stimulate the spirits.

When walking, point the toes straight ahead, never outward. Coming down heel first is a bad habit. There's an old saying that one should walk so that the soles of the shoes are never seen. The high instep needs to be supported by the proper last. Choosing shoes is an important matter. Comfort is more important than looks. Even though flappers may curl their noses at that statement, we'll stick to it.

When fat and forty reduces she must keep in mind that her complexion will suffer depletion if she doesn't watch out. At her age it lacks the resiliency of youth; wrinkles are lurking around the premises, ready to find a homestead. By taking off weight the tissues of the skin deteriorate. The outer surface, losing cushiony support, falls into lines. To avoid facial wreckage the would-be slimp must keep the complexion well oiled; and at least twice a day tissues and blood streams should be petted along by applications of ice.

White henna, used for bleaching blond hair that has tarnished, is not henna at all. White henna is made by taking a cupful of powdered magnesium carbonate and mixing with it sufficient peroxide to form a paste the consistency of whipped cream. Five drops of ammonia are added. The pack is applied to the roots of the hair with a firm brush, beginning at the back of the head. In 10 or 15 minutes have a shampoo with warm water and melted soap.

The housewife who serves rice, potatoes and macaroni at the same meal is stuffing her family full of starches. One starchy dish is enough. To counterbalance the effect of starch there should be green salads and vegetables. The properly balanced diet has everything to do with appearance—the thickness of the hair, the lustrous delicacy of the complexion, the health of the teeth, the merry glint in the eye.

Household Hints

Onion is one thing that should be kept in its place. In company with congenial foods it is a flattering importance, but when it comes in contact with butter and delicate foods noted for ther fastidious tastes, onion is distinctly disagreeable. In order to keep the two types clean cut, rub the knife that has peeled an onion in salt before using it on any other food.

* * *

Wasted minutes on wash day make the hours fly, and looking through numerous books or a forbidding pile of clippings to find just the proper recipe for removing one tiny stain is a nuisance. Take a stiff piece of cardboard and punch a hole in the top through which a card may be run. Then sort your clippings and paste them neatly on the plaque. To preserve it against the steam of the laundry room give the entire surfacing a coat of colorless shellac. This will be a time-saving information bureau.

THE OFFICE WIFE

turned up on Sunday, flushed with her little triumphs full of the ultimate gossip of her new circle.

Anne had been to the apartment. She liked two of the girls—pretty, hardworking, healthy youngsters. Lola, who had "provided the furniture" and through whom Kathleen had procured the engagement, was older, more sophisticated, with that sophistication which is not surface veneer, not yet a matter of jargon and argot and youth's mimicry, but rather a wisdom born of personal experience—devious experience, thought Anne, judging by the girl's shallow eyes, hard as turquoises, and by the lines of her bitter mouth.

Anne was deep in her thoughts when Mrs. Eaton entered. Linda had been riding and had stopped at her club for luncheon without changing, as was sometimes her custom, and now came in booted and breeched, her derby and crop in a gauntleted hand.

"I'm so sorry to have kept you waiting!" she cried, as she shook hands with the younger woman.

Anne observed how handsome she was, and magnetic. Somehow she pictured Mrs. Eaton otherwise—more "society," harder, less cordial.

Linda said hospitably: "Do take your things off and sit down. There are books all around. I've got to change. It won't take long."

She disappeared, whistling in the boyish way she had. Anne took off her coat and her tight-fitting hat. She had worked hard all morning and her head was aching.

She sat down on the sofa near the fire place, a book in her hands, but she did not read. She looked instead into the blue and scarlet, gold and green blazing of the driftwood fire which burned there, and let the serene loveliness of the room sink into every pore of her thirsty spirit. Suddenly she found herself fitting Lawrence Eaton into this, his proper place, out of office hours.

BLIMP DOWNED BY HEAVY WIND

JEFFERSON O., June 13 (AP.)—The blimp Defender of the Goodyear-Zeppelin fleet was forced down here after battling a 50-mile headwind for six hours and a half en route to Akron from the Shriners convention at Toronto.

The ship barely missed high-tension wires in coming down and had to circle over the town for a considerable time before enough help could be attracted for a safe landing.

Pilot Jack Boettner said he had only 75 gallons of gasoline left after the duel with the winds and was afraid to go further.

Sally's Coming!

"SALLY IN OUR ALLEY"—to member that merry, taggedy tag-gets little song you used to hum when you were sixteen? And how the sound of it was all tangled with the call of the first robin and the tumble of purple lilacs over the wall—and the sweet madness that spilled like spring sunshine through your hot, young blood?

Sally In Our Alley—well, here she comes again!

Another Sally, and yet the same. For Sallys are always Sallys!

Up from the alley and down from the hill—out of the office and store and crowded apartment—out from the grand, fine palace too—and in from the roaring, glittering street—here comes Sally! With a laugh in her eye and a song in her heart and a present for you, under her arm.

What sort of a present?

A COLUMN!

A NEWSPAPER COLUMN ALL YOUR OWN.

A COLUMN of letters and answers. But SUCH letters and SUCH answers and SUCH colyum as never was colyumed before!

DYNAMITE! SKYROCKETS! EARTHQUAKES! WHOOPEE AND WHEEZES!

AND A SNICKER THAT WRAPS AROUND TWICE—Yet, through it all, the sound of that first robin, the smell of purple lilacs, the fire of spring madness, and many an April tear!

TELL IT TO SALLY—that's the name of the column Sally Martin is bringing to you.

Well—love for instance.

Aw, gwan—don't look so sheepish. What if you ARE old and wise and busy—and you haven't swapped a candy heart in years.

What difference does that make?

Quit your bluffing! You know as well as I. Love's the greatest thing yet—in all the world.

Love—REAL love—the pot of gold at the rainbow's end. But how can you find it? And how shall you know it? And how may you hold it against all the odds?

SALLY WILL TELL YOU!

AND not Sally alone. Thousands of others. Thousands of men and women, writing letters such as you've never read before. REAL letters about REAL problems in REAL language—language that's quick and soft with love and joy and gallant desire and hence with hate and grief and despair.

REAL letters—and answers as terrible and tender and true as the letters.

A column—

Not a column of print—A COLUMN OF TRUTH.

TRUTH THAT WILL STRIKE WITH A CLANG ON THE BULL'S-EYE OF YOUR CONSCIOUSNESS—

TRUTH THAT WILL BLAZE LIKE A BEACON THROUGH THE DARKNESS OF YOUR CONFUSION—

And make you laugh—and make you cry—and make you ask for more!

TELL IT TO SALLY

DAILY TRUE STORY

"Willie is good to me," protested Flo Catlin.

"Who could help being good to you? Who would want to be otherwise than good to you? Why shouldn't your brother be good to you?"

But Arthur, I hate to say Willie's all to me. He gives me a nice allowance, his wife is awfully good to me—

Get out of a home? You two own the house together, and even if he should will another, he's about the worst wet smack who ever tried to reform the universe.

Flo sat and sighed and then giggled. "I'll allow that Arthur Martin was more or less right about one brother-in, she wanted to be—that. She and her brother were all that was left of the family. It did seem a bit too bad that he had to butt out such a million about the modern way of having good times.

Arthur was a live wire.

He operated a successful advertising agency and ever since the time when Flo was a flapper and he a senior in high school they had been in love.

At first William W. Catlin always called Willie by his sister and others frowned on the courtship and told Arthur point blank that both of them were too young to be thinking of love.

It seemed as if Willie Catlin loved to frown on most things.

Later Willie took Arthur one side and told him not to call on Flo.

Arthur beckoned to Flo who was coming up the path.

"Willie here says I'm not to call on you any more. Flo—what's the big idea?"

Friends

"Why, Willie," Flo cried, "the very idea. We're awfully fond of each other, we've been friends for years—of course he can't—to me."

"Not in my house."

"How about dividing the house and I'll call in your side, Flo?" Arthur asked.

That wasn't diplomatic on Arthur's part. Willie Catlin pretended that the big gratuity house was all his and that he gave a home to his sister. Willie got red and more angry than ever as Flo laughed at this.

"I am older. It is my duty to protect her from irresponsible worldly young men. You smoke cigarets, you play cards, you go to dances. I can't let Flo throw herself away on such an irresponsible young man," Flo's brother protested.

"When I get my business established I am going to marry Flo, Willie. Now, how do you like them apples?"

"Business!" snorted Willie.

However, Flo evidently had something to say, because Arthur continued to call on her, and all that was done about it were a few sour looks and now and then a sarcastic query as to Arthur's "silly advertising business."

Brother Willie was in real estate and proud of it.

Brother Willie was rather proud of himself in every way. From boyhood he had been a sedate high-minded religiously inclined sort of chap and Flo had taken more after her rather lively and sportive father.

Flo's mother tried to be fair. She divided the property between her perfect son and her little daughter, but there was a clause to the effect that at all times, even after she had reached her majority, she must be guided by her brother's advice.

Of course, when Arthur suddenly got in six big national accounts and took a whole floor in the Cosmo block and had a staff of artists and writers and increased his business right along, Willie didn't have an awful lot to say.

When Arthur drove around in a big red and silver car Willie said to Flo: "He'll squander his money and go broke."

But Arthur didn't go broke. His business flourished like the old green bay tree, whatever that is.

Willie was also peeved that sister Flo should spend all of her income on glad raiment.

And Flo wouldn't join the W. C. T. U. or any of those staunch organizations known as the backbone of decent society.

Willie found time to do quite a lot of active work for the "Eternal Teetotalists," as Arthur called them. They had a much wider known name.

Argues With Willie

Perhaps Willie was jealous of Arthur's success.

One day he had a talk with Arthur. Willie delighted in having "talks" of a serious nature.

"I've decided, Martin, that you cannot marry my sister," he said gravely.

"What has Flo decided?" Arthur asked.

"I am the one who decides—"

"That clause in the will, eh? Well, listen, Willie, it's all up to Flo—to hell with the will and with you!"

"Don't come here again—you are a profane, godless man," thundered Willie.

"You are neither profane, godless nor a man, Willie. Check that up on your wine list!"

"That's another point, you drink."

"One or two others do, too—there was St. Paul and—"

"Stop!" thundered Willie.

When Arthur saw Flo she had been crying. Brother Willie had told her that he would never approve of Arthur and that if she threw herself away on him he would fling her share of the property and disown her.

Flo was tender-hearted, and she loved big, wet-smack brother Willie in spite of all this.

Perhaps this could have been patched up all right except for the Sunnyglade raid.

Willie didn't see Flo at breakfast. At dinner he asked:

"Were you with Arthur last night?"

"Oh, yes."

"At the Sunnyglade?"

"We stopped in there—we were at Lila's dance and then we had some bridge, just a few hands, and then we went to the Sunnyglade—they have wonderful sea food and—"

"And you were mixed up in a raid."

Willie tried to thunder his words.

Flo said nothing.

"And your escort was arrested."

He wasn't.

"Don't equivocate." He was given a summons—he had a flask with him."

"He did not, Willie!"

Willie showed her the papers.

Flo Cries

"Thank God your name wasn't mentioned. It merely says here that Arthur Martin and lady were among those in the place when it was raided, and that because he had a flask he will have to appear at court."

But he didn't have a flask, Willie. It was just some flask that someone kicked under our table."

"Who'd believe that?"

"It's true!"

"You must take your choice—never see Arthur Martin again or else we break. I disown you!"

Flo was weeping when she went out to meet Arthur. He went in and tried to convince Willie that the flask was planted under his table and that he never saw it before. Willie told him that he lied. Arthur did not lie. The flask was not his. He had brought his Scotch in a quart bottle.

He didn't explain this to Willie.

"I'll remain away for a while," Arthur promised, giving Flo a wink.

"Forever!" said Willie.

Arthur was doubly sore now. He wanted Flo to be happy, and she wanted her only relative to remain friendly. It wasn't a pleasant situation.

Arthur Martin put a great deal of thought into his advertising campaigns. Now he began putting a great deal of thought into this situation.

When Willie cut him dead on the street Arthur was furious. He didn't like meeting Flo secretly all the time.

One day Arthur went to see Willie at his office.

"This is purely business, Catlin," Arthur said gruffly. "One of my clients wants some of that factory acreage you are commissioned to sell over in the meadows."

"Send him in. I only deal direct," Willie snapped right back at Arthur.

Two men came in. They paid no heed to Arthur, but showed Willie a paper. Willie got red then white.

"Are you men crazy? I'm William Catlin, a noted temperance worker. It's preposterous to think I would have liquor here."

The men started to search.

They went into a closet and brought out a carboy.

"That, sir, is spring water—it was delivered today—it is delivered to me here three times a week—"

Willie got no further.

A Frame-Up

"Yeah? Nice spring water—except that it is gin!"

"You fool!" shouted Willie. He took the glass they had poured and tasted. He choked and coughed and got very red. One of the men wheeled on Arthur.

"Who are you?" "I suppose you are the bootlegger who supplies him."

"On your way, stupid," Arthur said, handing him his card.

"I—I—this is a frame-up," bellowed Willie.

Flo dropped in just then. Arthur told her what had happened.

"Why, Willie!" Flo cried.

"It's a frame-up," Willie yelped again.

"Of course it was," Arthur agreed. "Somebody kicked that big carboy of gin up two flights of stairs and into your closet when you weren't looking, as they did with that flask they said was mine."

"Why, Willie!" Flo gasped again.

Arthur took the two raiders to one side. He whispered to them. He slipped them something that looked like money. They departed, gruffly advising Willie to watch out for their next raid.

"Willie, Flo and I are to be married next week," Arthur said, just as he would have said that he was going to buy a hat next week.

"Yes, yes—I understand. Marry her—I—I've been a little hasty. But I believe you framed me, Arthur Martin."

"Why, Willie!" his sister said, reproachfully.

"Yes, sir, by—by thunder! The way you happened in—the way those men happened in, and then Flo coming—all timed—I tell you I was framed! I see it all now, you really didn't own that flask under the table that the authorities claimed was yours—and so you framed me like this to make me understand! You hired someone to bring that gin up in the spring water carboy—you—you—oh, well, I hope you two will be happy."

Willie shook hands with them.

Every day sees some new restriction on personal liberty. In Carmel, N. Y., for example, Fire Chief Percy Snelling has issued a notice to this effect—

"Some of our volunteer firemen, when the siren sounds, have been in the habit of asking the telephone central how far off the fire is, and whether it is serious, before reporting, especially in unpleasant weather. Hereafter when the siren sounds the firemen must come to the fire house, as the telephone company will not give out information."

Why Does City Oppose Taxicab Competition?

The city administration is opposing the application of a new taxicab company for a certificate of public convenience, on the ground that a new company would increase traffic congestion—a pretty weak argument.

Pittsburgh should have as many taxicabs as it needs. The supply should be equal to the demand. Since taxicab companies are not in business for the fun of it, there is no likelihood that they would operate more cabs than the public demanded. The company which has virtually a monopoly of the taxicab business in Pittsburgh is now operating only about two-thirds of its cabs. It is not "cluttering up the streets" with cabs for which there is no demand, and there is no reason to believe that another company would do so.

The public naturally feels that Pittsburgh needs competition in the taxicab business, in order that the people may be protected from exorbitant rates.

The present rates are higher than are charged in some cities, yet an attempt was made a year ago to put into effect an even higher tariff, and the attempt would have succeeded if the Sun-Telegraph had not learned of the plan and fought it.

Mayor Kline remarked at that time that the rates charged in Pittsburgh were excessive. The companies, in the face of opposition, withdrew their application for higher rates, but the citizens can have no assurance, so long as the companies, since merged, enjoy a monopoly of the taxi business here, that they will not again seek to increase fares.

One effective way to keep rates down to a fairly reasonable basis is to establish competition, and that can be done only by giving a competing company the right to operate.

Hoover's Feeling Towards League Remains Unaltered

With elation two advocates of the League of Nations, the New York Times and the Baltimore Sun, report from Washington that the United States is to be represented by one of its ablest diplomats at Geneva, seat of the League of Nations.

Up to this time Geneva has had nothing but a plain United States consul. All our diplomats in Switzerland have heretofore been located in Berne, the Swiss capital, but a special situation has arisen.

Drew Pearson, Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, wired from Washington on June 3: "The increasing part which the United States is playing in League of Nations affairs has caused the State Department to appoint Prentiss Gilbert, one of its permanent and ablest diplomats, to be consul at Geneva in order to handle these activities.

"Mr. Gilbert is to act as consul, but has been given the rank also of diplomatic secretary and will serve for a short time as secretary of the American embassy in Paris en route to Geneva.

"Mr. Gilbert will assume his new duties in Geneva some time prior to the League of Nations assembly, which meets in September.

"Recently the American consulate at Geneva was transferred to much more auspicious quarters in the center of the city. This, together with the fact that the State Department last week approved the sale of one-third of the German reparations bonds in the United States, and the fact that never before has a man of Mr. Gilbert's caliber been sent permanently by the United States to Geneva, has led to the general impression THAT NEVER SINCE THE WILSON ADMINISTRATION HAS CO-OPERATION BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND EUROPE BEEN SO CLOSE."

The Republican party in state conventions and in primary elections throughout the nation, is declaring emphatically against the League of Nations, the League Court and foreign entanglements of all kinds.

Meanwhile the Hoover administration at Washington is busy endeavoring to entangle the United States in various foreign treaties and compacts and agreements, including the League Court and the League of Nations itself.

The situation seems incongruous until it is recalled that in 1928 THE REPUBLICANS DID NOT ELECT A REPUBLICAN PRESIDENT.

THEY ELECTED A WILSON DEMOCRAT.

Mr. Hoover in his career has been practically everything: a foreign resident, an internationalist, a League of Nations Democrat, and a declared Republican.

But in all the varied impersonations of his political career he has been more genuinely a League of Nations Democrat than anything else.

He was foreign resident a great part of his life, though he never actually became an expatriated American.

But when he returned home after his long years of residence in foreign lands, it was with ideas of internationalism that made him naturally and genuinely a Wilson Democrat.

Most of Mr. Hoover's political speeches prior to his Republican candidacy for President were delivered in support of President Wilson and Wilson's League of Nations policy.

Mr. Hoover is not a Jefferson Democrat, for Jefferson believed with Washington in this country minding its own business and keeping free from foreign entanglements.

Mr. Hoover was purely a Wilson internationalist and so publicly declared himself in his speeches and writings.

This column has published extracts from a typical Hoover speech of those days, an address delivered at Palo Alto in October, 1920, ADVOCATING OUR ENTRANCE INTO THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS WITHOUT ANY RESERVATIONS WHATEVER.

The leopard does not change his spots. The Ethiopian does not change his skin, the confirmed internationalist does not change his sentiments, though he may change his party to gain political advancement without changing his convictions.

Mr. Hoover obviously has not changed his convictions and he is quietly working as hard today to get the United States into various foreign entanglements as he did when he was in the Wilson administration speaking and writing publicly on behalf of the League of Nations.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

The gamete-bearing phase, whether it is the moss plant or the little leaflike fern phothallus or the pollen grain of a higher plant, is haploid; the spore-bearing phase, whether it is the spore capsule of a moss or the main part of a fern or a flowering plant, is diploid. The reduction division occurs during spore formation.

In the higher plants this cycle does not differ very markedly from our own, for in both the diploid stage is long and the haploid stage is brief.

H. G. Wells

The strange contrast is in the mosses, where the principal stage in life history is haploid.

In the simplest animals and plants there are curious jugglings with the chromosome cycle.

For example, in the red sea weeds, in the green threadlike alga Spirogyra, in the exquisite little single-celled Desmids and in the parasitic Sporozoa, almost the whole of the life history is spent in the haploid stage, the diploid stage occupying but a few minutes.

Reduction occurs at the first division after fertilization.

BOOK IV. CHAPTER FOUR
The A. B. C. of Genetics.
Sec. 1. Different Kinds of Variation.

The word "variation" covers a diversity of instances. For example, the progeny of a fancy mouse are born of divers colors and patterns; that is variation. Some are fed well and some badly, so that they come to differ in size and vigor. That can also be called variation; but it is a different sort of variation.

A pure-breeding strain of sweet-peas suddenly throws a "sport," a new color to form, and the new form may be known as a "variety," that is to say a variation. In the past this breadth of meaning of the word has been responsible for much confusion of thought in discussions of heredity and evolutionary change.

We shall analyze variation as it appears in a particular species.

The bean-plant differs from most plants and animals in that it normally and regularly fertilizes itself, so that there is no mixing of two heredities when new generations are begotten.

Each plant has only a single parent. As we shall presently see, inbreeding results in a uniform strain, so that in the bean we can be sure that any plant has exactly the same hereditary constitution, exactly the same chromosome outfit as its parent.

In biological language a bean-plant, its parent, grandparent and great-grandparent, its children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and so on, are spoken of together as A pure line because they all have the same inward constitution, handed on unchanged from generation to generation.

If they vary, we know that the variation comes not from innate, but from external causes. The sort of variation that comes from the inward constitution we call "inherited," the latter "enviromental" variation.

A classical series of experiments on beans was made by Johannsen in the opening years of the present century. He started by trying to modify the hereditary constitution of a pure line by selection.

The character he selected for was weight, because it is accurately measurable and because it is of practical importance.

His first step was to grow a number of beans from a single plant. Then, after the seeds had been weighed, the heaviest and the lightest were taken as the beginnings of two lines, the lines of plus and minus selection. The plus line arose from the heavy seeds; and in all further generations was again continued only from the heaviest beans, all the rest being rejected.

And the minus line received the reverse treatment. But originally they were started from brother seeds, picked from the same pure stock. The biggest brothers were bred from, and the smallest.

One would expect that this would have a marked effect upon the course of events, and that the average weight of the beans of the plus line would go up rapidly, that of the minus line as rapidly decline.

SUN, EARTH AND STARS

By Archibald Henderson

Through the patient observation and elaborate calculations of astronomers and astrophysicists, it is now possible to describe some of the fundamental phenomena of the universe in reasonably exact terms. It helps us enormously to understand the great problems of the universe if we can set down the absolute and relative proportions of things.

For example, we are able to understand how big the sun is, once we know that its diameter is more than one hundred times the diameter of the earth. It would take an express train about 12 years to travel once around its surface—presuming that the railroad track was laid and the sun was of the temperature of the earth. But the sun is of a different thinness or density to that of the earth.

The sun is only about one-fourth as dense as the earth. Its mass is light, then, as compared to ours. And yet, in spite of that, its weight in kilograms is measured by the number; two followed by thirty ciphers! In tons, this would be about two thousand million million million million tons.

The sun, on account of its enormous mass, attracts bodies very much more strongly than does the earth. For example, the sun endows bodies on its own surface with 28 times the weight which the earth can give to similar objects on its own surface. A man weighing 150 pounds on the surface of the earth would therefore weigh about two tons on the surface of the sun.

One of the most powerful instruments for determining the velocity of heavenly bodies is the spectroscope. The science of spectroscopy, which has been developed in less than three quarters of a century, teaches us, among others, two important things:

1. To every element belong certain definite lines in the spectrum, which occur always in exactly the same positions, and in precisely the same order. If the lines of such an element appear in the spectrum as bright lines, then we know for certain that the chemical element in question exists in the source of light under investigation in the form of incandescent vapor.

2. If these lines appear dark, while the background of the spectrum shows its rainbow colors—as happens, for example, in the spectrum of the surface of the Sun—this indicates, as laboratory experiments have proved, that a luminous body is transmitting its rays through the vapor of this element; which, if it were shining above, would give us precisely the same lines, but bright on a dark background.

Most remarkable of all of the results of spectroscopy, perhaps, is the fact that it furnishes us information concerning the movements of heavenly bodies. The principle upon which this fact rests is known, from the name of its discoverer, as Dopler's principle. This is described by Thomas in "Heaven and Earth."

Suppose, for example, we see a yellow star. The light from such a star, known as monochromatic light makes 550 oscillations per second. Imagine that this star approaches us with an incredible rapidity. We shall now receive a greater number of oscillation—say, 600 trillion per second. As a result, the star, which formerly appeared yellow, now looks green. Conversely if the yellow star moved away from us it would eventually look orange.

In this way we may determine the movements of stars, and even determine the rate of speeds at which they are moving, or their radial velocities.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Mexico Starts a War

It was in a little Spanish town on a night like this when Mexico decided that Morelos divorces were not worth the papers that were served in the case.

"Bugs" Baer

The State of Morelos is presided over by Ambrosia Puente, who for 800 pesos of the tropical realm, would dish up a very tasty divorce in 48 hours.

Which was all right if you weren't in a hurry.

Morelos is the next base after you tag Gretna Green. It used to be the Mecca for unhappy husbands, discontented wives and ladies who were misunderstood by their friends and by telephone operators.

In that beautiful land of haciendas, patios and siestas, you could grab yourself an overland separation for asthma, ingrown toe nails, baggy knees and other violations of the criminal code.

More than 2,000 American couples coasted into Morelos, skidded to the courthouse and snatched sparkling divorces like a boy grabs the brass ring on a carousel.

Among the famous folks who were sawed in half were the Paul Berlenbachs and the Tommy Burns.

Paul and Tommy are two retired ex-champion pugilists. Now that their divorces are null and void it looks as if the boys are fighting again.

Two thousand divorces means that there are now 4,000 Americans in the same fix as the prince at the Liverpool jump.

They don't know whether they are on foot or hossback.

Quite a few of these divorcees have been marriaged all over again. Which adds a couple of more thousand clients to the stampede.

Mighty oaks from little acorns grow. And then the squirrels come along and live there.

The southern ultimatum scrambles the details. It makes bigamists of good, old respectable divorcees who abhor scandal.

Neat ladies have now got two husbands and dapper men are the owners of a brace of wives. And it is always a laughing lull in society when you introduce the current Mrs. Glottz to the equally present Mrs. Glottz.

This decree puts everybody back in circulation. But it's great for the furniture business.

It seems that Sr. Puente had no right to establish himself as head man of the divorce mill. The Mexican government repudiates him, apologies to everybody and moves the decimal point over three numerals to the right.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, June 13.—Thoughts while strolling: Has any one ever read the entire label on a bottle of Worcestershire sauce? Gene Tunney and Jay C. Flippen look alike. Those society girls with shops on Madison avenue. Wonder if any one ever counted the wrinkles in John D, Sr.'s face?

That beautiful coal black tower with gilt cornices on West Fortieth street. Grantland Rice's stunning daughter. If I were Mayor of New York my first act would be to abolish parades. Give some men a uniform and a plumed hat and they'll march themselves to death.

And give some smart alecs a typewriter and they'll write stuff like this. Argentine gentlemen who prefer bright blonds. Will Mahoney wears a derby off stage too. Wade McGrath, the hotel man. Either that cop has a dizzy spell—or else. That young lady has a stocking turned wrong.

The Oriental rug seller who greets the sun with salaams every morning in Bryant Park. And returns at sundown for farewell salutes. Sidewalk toys leaping to hidden threads while salesman try to look nonchalant. Sandwich men who roam the curb edge and never look up—poor fellows.

Bob Brinkerhoff and his pipe. That two-year-old window sign, "Everything must be sold by midnight." And the place is packed daily. Arthur Hammerstein, the producer. All the Hammerstein's have distinguished themselves in the theater—Oscar, Oscar II, Willie and Elaine.

Broadway chop houses that offer fried chicken and porkchops for breakfast. The only cafes left with friendly Irish waiters. Lingerie salesmen making the rounds of dressing rooms. Jobless actors—still talking big. Men with jowls shaven a sirloin red who study racing forms.

Selling tea rooms is now a highly specialized racket. The racketeers open in a residential section and operate at a capacity from the start by serving delicious meals at exactly cost. When patrons are waiting in line the proprietor finds he "must go west on account of his health." The come-on sees he is doing a rushing business and is anxious to buy. But when he does, trade falls away. It requires about two months to build up this sort of a sale.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Are women innately cruel?

Are they more cruel than men?

Do they like to watch suffering and delight in inflicting pain?

A. Corbett Smith, British author and lecturer, says they are and do. Which is a rude shock to the ancient theory that woman is the tender and compassionate sex. But perhaps some of us have had reason to doubt that tradition, even before Author Smith crashed in with his impolite remarks.

For example—a heart rending play called "The Last Mile" was staged in New York recently. It portrayed the final hours of certain convicts in a row of death cells. Every agony that the human heart can know passed through that grim, gray row. And, almost to a man, the males in the audience flinched and went still at the horror and pity of it. But not so the ladies! After the first curious surveyal of this alien scene, they began to fidget and fuss and, at length, frankly bored, to giggle. The agony of those tortured creatures was real to the men. So real they were visibly wrung by it. But, to the women, it was merely a tiresome "play without a plot." The men went gray. The women powdered their noses. This phenomenon occurred not once but nightly. Many critics commented upon it. Did the ladies merely lack imagination? Or were they insensitive to suffering?

The women of the French Revolution knitted and laughed over picnic lunches while the guillotine knife fell. To the savage squaw is left the final, most fearful torturing of the captive. But these peasants and primitives have little, if anything, on modern fine ladies, according to Mr. Smith. And in no place is this demonstrated more plainly than in the treatment of the working man by the working woman of today.

Man, as many of us have frequently suspected, was never as great shucks as he led the Misses to believe. But she didn't discover that fact as long as she stayed at home, well outside the industrial racket. Having become a worker herself, she is suffering bitter disillusionment concerning the Lords of Creation, and taking it out on them accordingly.

"She has become impatient of his apparent failure, and so she comes increasingly to despise him. Hence her desire to wound. But, with her impulsive outlook, she makes the cardinal mistake of regarding cruelty, mental or physical, an attribute of strength instead of weakness."

And you'll be able to think of a score of examples to support this fact. But, again, is the heckling wife cruel or is she merely feeling her oats?

And the mother who tortures her family with orgies of recrimination and self-pity, fainting spells and sobbing fits, how about her? Is she cruel—or just craving the spotlight?

And last, but far from least, how about the Lady Boss? Mr. Smith says the "cruelty of women overseers to girl employes is proverbial." Ever work for a Lady Boss? Do you agree with him?

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Cheerio

"Cheerio," you say, and then
Gates of joy swing wide again
For a little while;
I am with you where you dwell
In that land where all is well,
Your enchanted isle.

"Cheerio," you cry at morn,
Straightway hope and trust are born;
Though my plight seemed grave,
I am armored should I meet
New disaster or defeat,
For my heart grows brave.

Though I wrote with lilting words
Sweet as songs of mocking-birds,
I could never tell
Half the gladness you have brought,
Half the wonders you have wrought
With your kindly spell.

"Cheerio:" your message brings
Sense of glad, uplifted wings,
Through each day I go
To my tasks with new delight
Since you make the mornings bright,
Gentle Cheerio!

Text For Today

Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength, and my redeemer.—Psalms xix:14.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Mr. Married Man, do you complain that your family is not dressed to suit you and grumble at the amounts the members spend for clothing?

That is inconsistent, isn't it?

Your wife would like to be better dressed and clothe the children more attractively.

Perhaps she is unwilling to spend the extra amount it would require.

Your objection to monthly bills make her prefer to spend less and be rid of your tirades.

You may be unfortunate in having a wife who cannot wear just anything with grace and becomingly.

She may have poor taste in style and material.

If she is lacking in an important essential she should not be censured when she is endeavoring to do the right thing.

Can't you tactfully help her in selection?

But usually a wife can dress herself and the children becomingly if she has enough money to do it.

Give her more leeway and praise her taste and judgment when you can.

But don't demand that she dress in a certain way and then complain about the amount she spends to do so.
